

Nixon Lawyers Bare Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers were due in court today with a Watergate tapes compromise the White House hopes will head off demands for his impeachment.

After a holiday weekend that shook the government, the House reconvened with at least two members prepared to file impeachment resolutions and many more saying they are ready to consider such a move.

And U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica also returned ready to hear how the White House will meet his demand for nine presidential tapes. The judge called a meeting for today of both grand juries looking into Watergate.

White House lawyers planned to tell the judge the case was settled out of court. But it was an out-of-court settlement achieved only after the President fired his opponent in the case, special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

That unusual settlement left observers unable to predict how Sirica might react to Nixon's plan to have Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., verify a summary of the Watergate-related portions of the tapes. Under the settlement, Stennis would then give the summary to the judge and the Senate Watergate committee.

Cox had subpoenaed nine tapes from the President and, when Nixon refused to comply, the special prosecutor went to court and got favorable decisions from Sirica and the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Nixon ordered Cox to halt his court efforts to obtain those tapes and any other White House recordings, notes or documents pertaining to presidential conversations.

When Cox refused, Nixon ordered his dismissal and transferred the prosecution force he had headed into the Justice Department.

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who had been confirmed by the Senate last May only after promising to appoint Cox special prosecutor and give him broad independence to pursue the investigation, resigned.

When Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Ruckelshaus also refused to fire Cox, he was dismissed.

Robert H. Bork, who had been solicitor general, a job Cox held a decade ago, was named acting attorney general, and he carried out the presidential order to fire Cox.

Bork put Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, head of the criminal division, in charge of the Watergate investigation and pledged to pursue it vigorously.

He said Petersen "will use the evidence and staff already assembled, as well as other department personnel, to see that these cases are pressed to a conclusion and that justice is done."

Cox's refusal to compromise on the tapes issue received support from Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee. Ervin said, "I would have done exactly like Cox did."

Democrats Eye Inquiry Into Nixon Impeachment

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders said today Speaker Carl Albert will turn over all proposals for impeachment of President Nixon to the House Judiciary Committee "for full consideration of whether or not an impeachable offense was committed."

Albert scheduled a news conference for shortly before noon to announce his action.

But leaders emerging from a formal meeting on the procedure, including Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, said Albert told them he wants the impeachable offense inquiry rather than full-scale House impeachment proceedings.

Wright said, however, that impeachment resolutions as well as resolutions urging only an inquiry will be turned over to the Judiciary Committee.

"This is the first necessary step if impeachment proceedings are to ensure," Wright said.

He also said Albert stressed twice during the morning that he wants House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan confirmed as vice president before there is any formal House action on impeachment, should the proceedings go that far.

"He just doesn't want Jerry Ford to be held hostage," Wright said.

Republican leaders also met, and Ford reaffirmed his support for Nixon.

Asked whether he thinks impeachment is likely, Ford said, "It doesn't seem to me that the facts, under the present circumstances, justify such drastic action."

Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona, a leading candidate to succeed to the top leadership post if Ford is confirmed as vice president, said, "I don't think the President has done any such act as would call for impeachment."

He said the dismissal and resignation of Justice Department officials did not constitute such acts. Asked whether refusal to comply with the court order to produce the Watergate tapes was such an act, Rhodes said, "I don't think you can say there has been a refusal."

Meanwhile, an Associated Press sampling of sentiment in the House showed that 48 members — most of them Democrats — are willing to at least consider impeachment proceedings against Nixon.

The developments followed Nixon's weekend firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and dismissal of his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, when they refused Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Speaker Carl Albert scheduled a news conference for today to announce the decision by Democratic leaders.

Albert and several other House leaders conferred Monday on the crisis over the Watergate tapes. A deputy Democratic whip, Rep. Jim Wright of Texas, said the leaders appeared agreed that an inquiry into impeachment grounds would be preferable at this time to a fullscale impeachment investigation.

Wright also said he was sure Albert wants to delay possible formal impeachment proceedings until Congress confirms Gerald R. Ford's nomination as vice president.

Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, R-Calif., was set to introduce impeachment resolutions today. But House leaders said they would head off any move for an immediate vote on impeachment.

Of the 48 House members The Associated Press sampling showed were willing to consider impeachment proceedings, 34 said they definitely favored an attempt to remove Nixon from office.

Another 22 members said they were undecided on the impeachment issue, and 18 flatly rejected the possibility at this time.

The list of House members who either supported immediate impeachment or said they would consider it was dominated by Democrats.

Twenty-nine Democrats and five Republicans said they supported impeachment. Twelve Democrats and two Republicans said they would consider it.

Influence Peddling By President Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — New evidence has surfaced tying President Nixon to an alleged deal involving a pledge of $2 million in campaign money in exchange for administration favors for the dairy industry.

Investigative sources said Monday they have obtained a letter addressed to Nixon on Dec. 16, 1970, reminding him of the industry's past support and telling him of the milk producer's need for immediate aid.

The letter was written, the sources said, by Pat Hillings of the Associated Milk Producers Inc., the major industry group.

The Associated Press has confirmed the letter's contents from four separate sources.

"The thrust of the letter was a request that the President approve new milk tariffs that the industry was interested in," one source said. "It pointed out that the industry had $2 million available for 1972 campaign contributions," but continued aid for the nation's dairy farmers was necessary if they were to continue their support.

Hillings noted that $135,000 already had gone to 1970 congressional candidates who were friends of dairymen, the sources said.

A month later, when the new Nixon budget was announced, proposed dairy subsidies rose nearly 10 per cent, compared to a slight increase for feed-grain subsidies and a major decrease in food-aid shipments, another method of government farm support.

The Hillings letter noted that it was bringing up a "sensitive political matter," the sources said, and evidence indicates it went directly to then-presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman. One source said it isn't certain whether Nixon read the letter or was merely told of its contents.

The following March, however, three events took place:

—On March 22, 1971, the first $10,000 contribution from milk producers was secretly delivered to a group of dummy campaign committees that later turned their holdings over to the Nixon re-election campaign.

—The following day, President Nixon and then-Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin met at the White House with 16 spokesmen for the dairy industry.

—On March 25, Hardin reversed a decision not to grant an increase in federal price supports for milk and announced approval of a 27-cent-per-hundredweight hike in price supports, claiming he had received new economic data.

The decision was worth between $500 million and $700 million to the nation's milk producers, according to an industry estimate.

Pablo Casals Dies At 96; Rites Today

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Tributes poured in today acclaiming the greatness of Pablo Casals, the cellist and humanitarian who died Monday at 96.

He was to be buried this afternoon in a black granite vault less than a block from his home.

Casals, who for the last 35 years used his musical talents in a protest against tyranny and a campaign for peace, died after three weeks in Auxilio Jutuo Hospital. He was hospitalized after a heart seizure, but doctors said he also suffered from chronic bronchitis, a kidney failure and circulatory ailments.

He was the foremost cellist of the 20th century and a superlative performer into his 80s. In recent years he won new honors as a conductor. He was a source of inspiration to the musicians with whom he worked every summer at the Marlboro, Vt., music colony.

"Sometimes I feel like a boy," Casals once said. "Music does that. I can never play the same piece twice in the same way. Each time it is new."

"Pablo Casals was one of the greatest musicians of all time and the greatest cellist," said Eugene Ormandy, the music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra. "His love of people was probably the reason for his rich and long life."

Russia's Mstislav Rostropovich, considered Casals' successor as the world's No. 1 cellist, said, "I have lost not only a great teacher but a true friend. I feel a great personal grief."

Born Dec. 29, 1876, in Vendrell, in the fiercely independent part of Spain known as Catalonia, Casals played before Spanish royalty before he reached the age of 15. He was solo cellist for the Paris Opera while still a teen-ager.

He returned to Spain in the 1930s to conduct his own orchestra, but was driven abroad by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's overthrow of the Republican government in the Spanish Civil War.

Ohio Assembly Opens Special Session Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of the 110th Ohio General Assembly return to the Statehouse today for a special legislative session designed to curb deteriorating public regard for politicians and their campaigns.

Democratic Gov. John Gilligan called the extraordinary session and restricted it to consideration of new laws to limit and account for campaign spending.

House Speaker A. G. Lancione, D-99 Bellaire, said there probably will be party caucuses when both chambers convene at 1:30 p.m. The lawmakers are expected to recess later to let Senate and House election committees work on specific proposals, including one from the Gilligan administration.

Predictions of how long the special session may last vary from several days to two weeks or longer. It will depend on the lawmakers' ability to reach a compromise in key areas.

Election of the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, 6:30 p.m.

Mark Downing Begins Prison Research

Mark S. Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Downing, 163 W. Mound St., Circleville, and Stephen K. Haller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Haller, Xenia, have recently begun work on an empirical research project at the Federal Correctional Institution at Milan, Mich. Both students are in their second year of studies at the College of Law of The University of Toledo.

The project is being funded by a grant from the Federal Bureau of Prisons. The students will spend twenty hours a week for the next fifteen months studying the institution. The topic for the project is "The Legal Ramifications of the Rehabilitative and Personnel Problems at Milan F.C.I." Various treatment programs and policies will be evaluated, with special emphasis on the legal problems created by these functions.

The students' project is part of their involvement in the Empirical Research Program, a newly conceived program at The University of Toledo Law School designed to train lawyers, not for the traditional decision-making. In their first year, the students were exposed to two empirical methodology courses, in addition to the regular curriculum. During their second and third year, the students design and perform an empirical study of one or more of the legal problems of some institution in which they are interested.

The program is interdisciplinary and specialized, drawing upon skills acquired as an undergraduate and requiring the development of new academic expertise, while learning legal concepts simultaneously.

Although the students will receive the usual Juris Doctor Degree, the developers of the program hope that its graduates will have a different perspective on the law from that of the usual J.D. They feel that the substitution of in-depth research for some substantive law courses will not impair the graduate's ability to function in the individual lawyer-client relationship, but it will enhance the graduate's ability in institutional endeavors.

Logan Elm Board Members Meet With Voting Public

The Logan Elm Board of Education held the first of a series of discussion meetings at Pickaway Township School, Monday evening. The purpose of these meetings is to promote successful passage of the school operating levy.

The most commonly asked questions about the school operating levy are:

(Q) Why do we need an additional operating levy?

(A) Increased Student Population requires additional expenses such as additional textbooks, instructional materials, tables, chairs, and desks, etc.

Additional teachers will help to relieve some of the overloaded classrooms and eliminate necessity of placing students of different grade levels in the same room in combination classes.

School Buses are to be used only as long as they are in a safe condition, usually eight to ten years according to the State Department of Transportation. At a replacement rate of five buses per year, it will take almost six years to replace our 29 bus fleet.

Inflation drives up the cost of everything the schools buy in the way of supplies, equipment, and materials. Overall, our costs have gone up more than 33 per cent in the last three years.

All Maintenance and Repairs of Buildings has been held to a minimum as an economy measure during the past year. Only work of an emergency nature is performed. The care of these buildings cannot be postponed any longer.

(Q) How does Logan Elm's costs per pupil for instruction compare with other Ohio schools?

(A) The statewide average cost per pupil for instruction was $520 for the 1971-72 fiscal year. Logan Elm's cost per pupil for instruction was $487, considerably below the state average. It should be noted that the full impact of the additional state school aid provided by H. B. 475 (December, 1971) will not be reflected in school district expenditure until the 1972-73 costs per pupil are reported. At that time, Logan Elm should fall even lower because of lack of state monies.

(Q) Did the board of education borrow money to operate and keep schools open this year?

(A) Yes, from January through October a total of $285,000 at 4½ per cent interest was borrowed in order to meet the payroll and pay essential monthly bills.

(Q) Where can I get additional facts?

(A) School officials are making a great effort to get information to each citizen. Read the published materials carefully. Citizens committees are encouraging all voters to attend one of the discussion meetings listed below.

The entire Board of Education and Superintendent will be at each school to specifically answer questions about the operating levy on the following dates: Washington School—Oct. 24; Saltcreek School—Oct. 25; Laurelville School—Oct. 29.

All Meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

Call the Superintendent's office if you have further questions, at 474-8324.

Grand Larceny Investigated

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy investigated two reports of grand larceny Monday.

Betty A. Hanawalt, Route 1, Williamsport, reported thieves entered a building owned by her and took a jet pump, sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday.

Using a key to enter the building, the thieves cut the pump with a sharp object.

Estimated value of the pump was $149.

Lee A. Dittmar, Mt. Vernon, Ind., reported someone took a portable x-ray machine from his car between midnight and 6 a.m. Monday.

Dittmar, staying at a trailer park, on Route 62, said thieves forced the car unlocked and took the machine.

Value of the machine was estimated at $1,872.

Logan Elm Board Members Meet With Voting Public

The Logan Elm Board of Education held the first of a series of discussion meetings at Pickaway Township School, Monday evening. The purpose of these meetings is to promote successful passage of the school operating levy.

The most commonly asked questions about the school operating levy are:

(Q) Why do we need an additional operating levy?

(A) Increased Student Population requires additional expenses such as additional textbooks, instructional materials, tables, chairs, and desks, etc.

Additional teachers will help to relieve some of the overloaded classrooms and eliminate necessity of placing students of different grade levels in the same room in combination classes.

School Buses are to be used only as long as they are in a safe condition, usually eight to ten years according to the State Department of Transportation. At a replacement rate of five buses per year, it will take almost six years to replace our 29 bus fleet.

Inflation drives up the cost of everything the schools buy in the way of supplies, equipment, and materials. Overall, our costs have gone up more than 33 per cent in the last three years.

All Maintenance and Repairs of Buildings has been held to a minimum as an economy measure during the past year. Only work of an emergency nature is performed. The care of these buildings cannot be postponed any longer.

(Q) How does Logan Elm's costs per pupil for instruction compare with other Ohio schools?

(A) The statewide average cost per pupil for instruction was $520 for the 1971-72 fiscal year. Logan Elm's cost per pupil for instruction was $487, considerably below the state average. It should be noted that the full impact of the additional state school aid provided by H. B. 475 (December, 1971) will not be reflected in school district expenditure until the 1972-73 costs per pupil are reported. At that time, Logan Elm should fall even lower because of lack of state monies.

(Q) Did the board of education borrow money to operate and keep schools open this year?

(A) Yes, from January through October a total of $285,000 at 4½ per cent interest was borrowed in order to meet the payroll and pay essential monthly bills.

(Q) Where can I get additional facts?

(A) School officials are making a great effort to get information to each citizen. Read the published materials carefully. Citizens committees are encouraging all voters to attend one of the discussion meetings listed below.

The entire Board of Education and Superintendent will be at each school to specifically answer questions about the operating levy on the following dates: Washington School—Oct. 24; Saltcreek School—Oct. 25; Laurelville School—Oct. 29.

All Meetings will begin at 8 p.m.

Call the Superintendent's office if you have further questions, at 474-8324.

Grand Larceny Investigated

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy investigated two reports of grand larceny Monday.

Betty A. Hanawalt, Route 1, Williamsport, reported thieves entered a building owned by her and took a jet pump, sometime between 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Monday.

Using a key to enter the building, the thieves cut the pump with a sharp object.

Estimated value of the pump was $149.

Lee A. Dittmar, Mt. Vernon, Ind., reported someone took a portable x-ray machine from his car between midnight and 6 a.m. Monday.

Dittmar, staying at a trailer park, on Route 62, said thieves forced the car unlocked and took the machine.

Value of the machine was estimated at $1,872.

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

In legislative action this week, the Governor has formally called the General Assembly back into session to write a strong campaign financing law. The special session will begin Tuesday, October 23. It is hoped that such a law can be enacted in this session so its provisions could be in effect for the 1974 primary elections in May.

Ohio has the lowest unemployment rate of any industrial state in the nation and Ohio's businessmen are looking forward to a good business year in 1973. Despite a recession at the national level during part of 1971 and 1972, Ohio enjoyed a measurable growth rate.

In January, 1971, employment in the state stood at nearly 4.5 million. In less than three years, this number has increased by 348,800 — an 8 per cent employment gain the space of two-and-a-half years.

During the same period, the unemployment rate, which was 5.2 per cent in January, 1971, fell in the spring of this year to 3.5 per cent.

We in the State of Ohio witnessed a substantial increase in the number of businesses and industries that expanded during that period.

A total of 1,134 firms announced plans to build new or expanded facilities in Ohio during 1972 — an increase of 366 over 1971.

Since 1969, Ohio has recorded a steady rise in the Gross State Product, which is the annual dollar value of all goods and services produced in Ohio.

The 1969 GSP was $50.5 billion while the 1972 GSP had risen by 8.7 per cent to $59.9 billion.

Seven Motorist Information Centers will soon be constructed at Key points of entry around the State to promote Ohio travel and tourism.

The new centers are an expansion of a program to generally upgrade all interstate rest area facilities in Ohio. All of the new information centers will have modern restroom facilities including flush toilets.

Bid proposals for the first two centers are to be opened in December of this year with construction beginning as early as January 1974. A completion date of fall 1974 is planned. The remaining five centers are scheduled for completion by fall of 1975.

All of the centers will be built on the sites of existing rest area facilities. The estimated cost of the new structures of $200,000 each, not including the cost of additional right of way, parking facilities, expanded lighting and landscaping.

The cost of an information center building is only about $25,000 more than the cost of a new rest area structure. The centers will be constructed with 90 per cent highway matching funds with the State picking up the remaining 10 per cent.

A long-range program to generally upgrade all rest area facilities on the interstate highway system has been established. Upgrading will include new restroom building with flush toilets, special ramps and other improvements to aid the handicapped and additional parking and lighting.

The overall cost of the upgrading will be $23.8 million with the federal government paying 90 per cent and the State 10 per cent.

The upgrading program should be completed by late 1975.

Governor John J. Gilligan will host the Third Annual Governor's United Nations Week kickoff Saturday October 20 in Cleveland.

The observance has traditionally been held at the Governor's Mansion in Columbus to salute Ohioans of foreign birth and descent while promoting peace and understanding among Men of all nations.

This year UN week reception will be held at the Hofbrau Haus, 1400 East 55th Street, from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. The reception will be attended by hundreds of representatives of the ethnic communities throughout Ohio.

"This year, we are especially proud to have as our special guests the people of Ohio who became naturalized citizens of the United States during the past few weeks," the Governor said.

"Not only will we be able to show our gratitude to the thousands of Ohioans of foreign extraction who have helped to develop our great state, but we will be able to give an appropriate welcome to those who will contribute their culture and skills to the future well-being of Ohio," the Governor added.

The observance will be the climax of a foreign birth or descent to "put on your dancing shoes" and join he and Mrs. Gilligan at the Saturday reception.

The program is open to all Ohioans of ethnic origin and will offer two bands, light refreshments and a chance for ethnic Ohioans from throughout the state to get acquainted with one another as well as with the Governor.

The event wraps up a year-long schedule of activities including an international reception at the Mansion in March to kick-off the year's Let's Hear it for Ohio's Heritage program, an International Concert on the Statehouse lawn in August, and International Day at the Ohio State Fair featuring Cleveland's Frank Yankovic.

Ohioans Rip Nixon Firings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohioans—from the governor to a private attorney—have joined in growing rumblings of impeachment of President Nixon for his actions concerning the Watergate tapes.

"There is no other forum left but the forum in Congress of formal impeachment proceedings," said Gov. John J. Gilligan Sunday.

Impeaching the President was the only way to resolve what Gilligan said was a constitutional crisis in America over who has more power—the President or the courts.

Impeachment of Nixon might help bring about more, beneficial investigations of Watergate, said Benson Wolman, attorney and head of the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union.

First, there would be the investigation by the House, and "if Judge Sirica is wise, he will undertake the appointment of a special prosecutor of his own," Wolman said.

"By doing so, Judge Sirica could assure the continuance of the Watergate grand jury and could assure that any prosecutor would not be subject to removal by the President.

"Such proceedings and appointments are not unheard of in American jurisprudence and any federal judge does have the authority to name a special prosecutor," Wolman said.

Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, wouldn't comment on impeachment, noting that first the House must conduct an investigation.

But he said Democrats "might hold hostage the vice presidential selec-

Fashion Models Become Film Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Where do the new female stars come from? Right out of the fashion magazines and television commercials, according to the current trend.

The old movie story that starlets are plucked from chorus lines and malt shop stools is now just legend. Film producers now pick high-fashion models.

Examples:

Marisa Berenson, who appeared in "Death in Venice," "Cabaret" and is now starring with Ryan O'Neal in a Stanley Kubrick film.

Cybill Shepherd, director Peter Bogdanovich's star on and off the screen. She appeared in his "Last Picture Show," is now making "Daisy Miller" for him and also played the cool heiress in "The Heartbreak Kid."

Jennifer O'Neill, the beauty who brought love to teen-age Gary Grimes in "The Summer of '42". Her other films: "Lady Ice," "The Carey Treatment."

Twiggy, who did a creditable job in "The Boy Friend" and recently filmed a thriller called "W."

Ali MacGraw, the star of "Goodbye, Columbus" and "Love Story" who married the boss of Paramount, Robert Evans, then left him for her "Getaway" co-star, Steve McQueen.

Latest to join the ranks of model-stars is Ann Turkel, whose slim brunette beauty has appeared on the cover of every fashion magazine in the United States and Europe. She is appearing opposite Richard Harris in "99 and 44-100 per cent Dead," directed by John Frankenheimer for 20th Century-Fox.

Having gone from cover girl to star in her first film, Turkel would seem to offer a case history for the casting trend. She denies it.

"I studied acting since I was 5," she said. "I was taking dramatic lessons from Sandy Meisner at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York and I was 14 and I began playing in summer stock at 16.

"I went into modeling only because I thought it was better to be known as an employed model than an unemployed actress."

Her tall willowy frame and high-cheeked enigmatic face made her an immediate favorite with fashion photographers and magazine editors. After her first year as a model, she almost fulfilled her acting desires. Paramount picked her to star in a musical remake of "Roman Holiday," calling her a "present-day Audrey Hepburn." But the project never got off the ground, and she went back to modeling.

Her view of the model's life gives a hint on why so many of them seek careers in films.

"I'd be a liar if I didn't say it was boring," she remarked. "I know people are indignant when I say so; they ask, 'How can anything that pays so well be boring?' Well, it is.

"There are some photographers, like Richard Avedon, who are fun to work with. But with most of them it is sheer boredom."

During five years as a model, Ann Turkel made between $80,000 and $100,000 a year posing for the fashion pages and an occasional television commercial. She could have made more if she had been willing to take all kinds of modeling jobs.

A Page Of Opinion

Major Budget Item

Like an out-of-control juggernaut, welfare spending in the United States continues to escalate. Despite efforts in a few states and in some federal programs to hold down costs, the dollar curve continues upward — and at a sharper angle than was the case only a few years ago.

Through prosperity and recession, periods of high employment or low, social program spending (generally classed as welfare has been the fastest growing segment of the federal budget, as well as many state budgets. Original estimates for the current fiscal year were that the federal government would spend nearly 50 per cent of the budget ($131 billion out of $269 billion) for public welfare.

When final tallies have been made, that figure may be considerably higher. Increases have been passed by Congress for Social Security and Supplemental Security income payments, the food stamp program has been continued and new regulations proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for tightening loose spending policies have been postponed until November.

About one-fourth of the current spending level is for persons judged to be in need of financial help. The remainder goes for income security programs like Social Security, Medicare and unemployment, toward which contributions have been made by workers and-or their employers.

Tax Foundation records indicate spending in the income security category has tripled in the last 10 years and now comprises the largest budget category. With the total federal budget laboriously being brought closer to a balance between revenue and spending, better control over welfare growth will have to be found to keep inflationary pressures from bubbling forth huge deficits once again.

John Dean Revisited III

By JEFFREY HART

I do not want to belabor the topic of John Dean to the point of tedium, but, after all, his testimony was a summer sensation and also fundamental to the whole Watergate furor. Therefore, two more points: 1) Dean's Investigation. One point in Dean's testimony sought to show that President Nixon had lied to the public. In an August 29 press conference, the President had referred to the fact that the "counsel to the president, Mr. Dean, had conducted a complete investigation of all leads which might involve any present members of the White House staff."

Dean, however, flatly denied before the Ervin committee and national TV that he had never conducted any such investigation.

"Sen Gurney: Let us go to the August press conference, where the President referred to the Dean report. My understanding is that you indicated great surprise at this so-called Dean report, because as I understand it, you felt you had not been conducting an investigation of Watergate, is that right?"

"Dean: That is correct."

Thus, over national TV, another blow to the President's credibility.

But during the week of March 23, Dean had prepared at Camp David some 15 pages of notes on legal-size pads which show that testimony to be false. The Camp David notes have two parts, the second of which is entitled, of all things, "(II) The John Dean Investigation."

Dean there records that on the Sunday after the original break-in, "I spoke with John Ehrlichman who instructed me to get the facts together and report to him." After discussing the inquires he then made, Dean goes on: "During the days and weeks that followed I discussed the incident with everyone who I thought might have any knowledge or involvement. Set forth below are the findings from these conversations." He then sets forth the results of the discussions.

Mountains of evidence exist to prove that Dean was known to be conducting an investigation. Pat Gray testified that Dean had told him he was investigating the matter and reporting to the President. Richard Klein-dienst, Henry Petersen, and Lieut. General Vernon A. Walters testified to the same effect. During the Pat Gray confirmation hearings, Dean drafted a letter, to be submitted under oath to the Senate committee, in which he said: "In an investigation of this importance it was incumbent on me to obtain all available information from every appropriate investigative resource, and I would have been derelict indeed if I had not requested information from the FBI."

(2) PAYMENTS TO THE WATERGATE DEFENDANTS. Here again there is glaring contradiction between Dean's Camp David notes and his Watergate testimony. The point at issue is whether the payments were for legal aid and family support (perfectly legal) or for silence (a felony).

Dean's testimony before the Ervin committee carefully involves Herbert Kalmbach in illegal activity: "I told him everything I knew about the case at that time, including my concern that it might involve the President himself. . . Mr. Kalmbach had no difficulty understanding that this was for silence."

But in his Camp David notes, in which Dean was recalling "everything I could remember about the incidents," the account is very different: "Mitchell was given information that the men who had been arrested were looking for assistance to make their bonds. . . Mitchell. . . requested that I discuss the situation with (Haldeman) and (Ehrlichman) and advise them that Herb Kalmbach should be called upon to raise the $70,000 in cash that was necessary to meet the demand. . . Kalmbach who never asks any questions except whether E and H want him to do something proceeded to collect the money and deliver it per instructions to Fred LaRue. I never discussed the details of this matter with Kalmbach."

Now that is a very different statement from Dean's testimony that he had discussed "everything I knew about the case at that time with Kalmbach."

Conclusion: Between the last week in March, when he worked on the Camp David account, and his Ervin committee testimony, Dean had made the decision to implicate Kalmbach. By this time, you can supply the motive yourself.

Shaken Justice Department As Evidence, Experts Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crippled at the top and stunned throughout, the Justice Department is stumbling for a way out of its gravest upheaval in a crisis-ridden year.

Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork sought first to determine how to handle the Watergate prosecution thrust in his hands by presidential order.

The decision, which he promises to announce Tuesday, may influence the scores of department employees considering resigning in support of Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus.

Richardson quit as attorney general rather than obey President Nixon's order to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Ruckelshaus was fired as his deputy for defying the same command.

They felt to fire the special prosecutor would violate a pledge of independence made to Cox and the Senate.

Bork then became acting attorney general, fired Cox and kept his reasons to himself.

Top-level conferences occupied Bork and a number of department officials Sunday and were expected to continue today, though a government holiday allowed most employees the day off.

Richardson was said to be "deeply disappointed" at the turn of events that forced him out of the office he had held only five months and the administration he had served from the beginning.

He spent Sunday playing tennis with friends and sorting out the thoughts he planned to discuss publicly, probably at a news conference Tuesday.

Richardson was seeking to dissuade several department officials intent upon resigning, said a Richardson friend.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen reportedly was among those considering a resignation as he faced the prospect of pursuing a Watergate investigation with White House records declared off-limits. Cox considered those records vital.

Petersen had complained and seriously considered resigning when the investigation was taken from him and given to Cox. But Richardson persuaded him to stay and won his esteem with assurances that criminal investigations would be free of political influence.

GaylmaKinnie, fine trotter owned by Harry Short, former Circleville resident, was destroyed at York, Pa., after breaking a leg during a race. The horse had won numerous races before suffering the mishap.

Area residents began a search of cellars and out-of-the-way places for wooden Indians that used to stand in front of cigar stores.

The search began after Cecil B. DeMille, famous Hollywood director, announced that he would pay a good price for one of the "Cigar Store Redskins." He needed it for a scene in his latest movie "Union Pacific."

Members of the Circleville Police Department sent a request to city council urging that legislation be passed providing that each member of the department be given one day or night off each week. The chief and patrolmen were working seven days a week.

Two petitions, signed by about 80 persons, asking that S. Washington and Mill Sts. be treated to lay dust were presented to city council. These streets, improved and resurfaced during the summer, had a coating of gravel on them, causing the dusty situation. L. E. Speaking Of Your Health by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Airlines have finally and wisely realized that the personal health and liberties of their passengers are affected by tobacco smoke in the closed confines of an airplane.

It is now possible to choose a non-smoking compartment free from exposure to the hazards of other people's smoke. Movie houses and theaters long ago have given their patrons this choice.

There are still many areas where the captive audience in trains and elevators must pay a penalty for another person's smoking indulgence.

One reader from Nevada amusingly wrote that he was unable to enjoy his game of Blackjack because everybody at his table puffed smoke directly into his face. He wanted me to suggest that certain tables be set aside for non-smokers.

He added "What's the use of winning if I'll be too sick to enjoy my profits?" Facetious as that sounds there is scientific validity to the fact that non-smokers are subject to health hazards when exposed to the concentrated smoke of others.

People with chronic bronchitis, emphysema or asthma are severely burdened when they are caught in a closed room filled with cigarette smoke.

Cigar smokers are a special menace of their own in a poorly ventilated room.

The fact that impurities in cigars are not nearly so hazardous as those in cigarettes does not minimize the fact that cigar smokers have the telltale evidence of their presence long after they have left the room.

It may be possible to convince some cigarette smokers that their health can be seriously affected by cigarettes. It is not impossible, however, to find ways to protect non-smokers from the burdens imposed on them in all public places of assembly.

Despite the most intensive educational programs that advocate proper vaccinations, thousands of children still pay the penalty of sickness and even death, because of the neglect of such advice.

It comes as a shocking surprise that measles, German measles, poliomyelitis, tetanus, and even diphtheria and whooping cough still take such an immense toll.

Childhood diseases are often viewed too casually. Only when the severe complications of measles affect the health destiny of a child do the parents realize that these diseases can be extremely dangerous.

There are, of course, some people who, because of religious or rigid positions, reject vaccination and immunization. These people arbitrarily refuse to accept these procedures.

In most instances, however, it is plain ordinary neglect that deprives children of their rightful heritage to good health.

Far too many people believe that once a child is vaccinated that protection lasts forever. Booster shots for each vaccine must be given at regular intervals to maintain a child's capacity to defend himself against a disease.

I have always believed that the best birthday present a child can get is a complete physical examination, amplified by immunization against childhood diseases.

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — America's largest corporations operate nationally and internationally, and the corporate executive often must bounce from place to place around the world.

Before coming to rest in a posh job at headquarters, he might have to move seven or eight times, landing in a community long enough only to get the kids enrolled in school and his wife accepted at the local garden club.

But resistance is growing. Various studies have shown a reluctance among younger executives to give their all for the company. Many opt instead for less corporate success for more personal success.

One of the latest illustrations of this thinking turned up in a survey by a moving company, Atlas Van Lines.

The survey, taken informally at the company's annual moving forum, showed that about one-quarter of the corporations questioned were encountering increasing reluctance by employees to intercity transfers.

The survey didn't zero in on the specific reasons why, but it suggested that familial motives were dominant. The employees were turning down more money, responsibility and authority.

The family reasons are not clear cut. Studies have shown that many families that move together stay together. The uprootings cause family members to learn to rely on each other and become closer.

Now, a relatively new factor is being introduced into the corporate world. It is the emancipated housewife who no longer is willing to take orders from corporate headquarters.

The American Management Association, which studies and advises men on the way up the corporate ladder, now recognizes the growing competitiveness of the female with the corporation.

In a book entitled "Corporate Wives — Corporate Casualties," the association recognizes that women have been the silent victims of this competition for the men. And the author, Dr. Robert Seidenberg, suggests they are reacting.

A Page Of Opinion

Major Budget Item

Like an out-of-control juggernaut, welfare spending in the United States continues to escalate. Despite efforts in a few states and in some federal programs to hold down costs, the dollar curve continues upward — and at a sharper angle than was the case only a few years ago.

Through prosperity and recession, periods of high employment or low, social program spending (generally classed as welfare) has been the fastest growing segment of the federal budget, as well as many state budgets. Original estimates for the current fiscal year were that the federal government would spend nearly 50 per cent of the budget ($131 billion out of $269 billion) for public welfare.

When final tallies have been made, that figure may be considerably higher. Increases have been passed by Congress for Social Security and Supplemental Security income payments, the food stamp program has been continued and new regulations proposed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for tightening loose spending policies have been postponed until November.

About one-fourth of the current spending level is for persons judged to be in need of financial help. The remainder goes for income security programs like Social Security, Medicare and unemployment, toward which contributions have been made by workers and-or their employers.

Tax Foundation records indicate spending in the income security category has tripled in the last 10 years and now comprises the largest budget category. With the total federal budget laboriously being brought closer to a balance between revenue and spending, better control over welfare growth will have to be found to keep inflationary pressures from bubbling forth huge deficits once again.

John Dean Revisited III

By JEFFREY HART

I do not want to belabor the topic of John Dean to the point of tedium, but, after all, his testimony was a summer sensation and also fundamental to the whole Watergate furor. Therefore, two more points: 1) Dean's Investigation. One point in Dean's testimony sought to show that President Nixon had lied to the public. In an August 29 press conference, the President had referred to the fact that the "counsel to the president, Mr. Dean, had conducted a complete investigation of all leads which might involve any present members of the White House staff."

Dean, however, flatly denied before the Ervin committee and national TV that he had never conducted any such investigation.

"Sen Gurney: Let us go to the August press conference, where the President referred to the Dean report. My understanding is that you indicated great surprise at this so-called Dean report, because as I understand it, you felt you had not been conducting an investigation of Watergate, is that right?"

"Dean: That is correct."

Thus, over national TV, another blow to the President's credibility. But during the week of March 23, Dean had prepared at Camp David some 15 pages of notes on legal-size pads which show that testimony to be false. The Camp David notes have two parts, the second of which is entitled, of all things, "(II) The John Dean Investigation."

Dean there records that on the Sunday after the original break-in, "I spoke with John Ehrlichman who instructed me to get the facts together and report to him." After discussing the inquiries he then made, Dean goes on: "During the days and weeks that followed I discussed the incident with everyone who I thought might have any knowledge or involvement. Set forth below are the findings from these conversations." He then sets forth the results of the discussions.

Mountains of evidence exist to prove that Dean was known to be conducting an investigation. Pat Gray testified that Dean had told him he was investigating the matter and reporting to the President. resource, and I would have been derelict indeed if I had not requested information from the FBI."

(2) PAYMENTS TO THE WATERGATE DEFENDANTS. Here again there is glaring contradiction between Dean's Camp David notes and his Watergate testimony. The point at issue is whether the payments were for legal aid and family support (perfectly legal) or for silence (a felony).

Dean's testimony before the Ervin committee carefully involves Herbert Kalmbach in illegal activity: "I told him everything I knew about the case at that time, including my concern that it might involve the President himself. . . Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

Since the last major trade negotiations concluded six years ago, the world trade picture has changed dramatically. For the United States, these shifts in the world market have taken, if anything, a particularly negative course. American goods have been discriminated against overseas; the balance between imports and exports has vastly altered; the dollar has been devalued more than once and the U.S. has become much more dependent on overseas oil.

None of these factors has augured well for the economy of this country, and many of them have had a great deal to do with our increasing inflation.

New Court Techniques Discussed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A New York State judge told a session of the National Conference of Metropolitan Courts Sunday that one technique that has improved New York court operations is to have juries selected outside the presence of the judges.

Judge William Groat of Jamaica, N.Y., called the jury selection system a great time saver. He said it was one of the techniques that makes New York's master docket system work. "The lawyers know a jury is waiting and they have to come to trial or settlement," he said.

Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) Common Pleas Court Judge Thomas Parrino defended the personal docket system in a debate with Judge Groat. Parrino said that under the personal docket system, Common Pleas Court here has cut the backlog of cases from about 22,000 to 17,000.

The personal docket system, under which a judge is assigned a share of cases and is responsible for handling them from beginning to end, was adopted here in January, 1972.

Parrino said it was not likely that Cuyahoga County would return to the master docket system but the New York jury selection system may be studied further. He noted, however, that that system could not be used in criminal cases.

High Court Nixes Hearing On Vo-Ed Schools Lawsuit

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court will not consider a suit challenging state aid to vocational schools, E. Dennis Barnes, who filed the suit, said Monday.

Barnes, a member of the Upper Sandusky School Board, said he was notified by the high court that his suit was not explicit enough about why he wants next month's vote on a proposed vocational school levy off the ballot in Wyandot and Crawford counties.

Barnes contends the Ohio Constitution only permits funding of regular schools, not schools that teach skills.

He has a similar suit pending in the state court of appeals in Lima.

'Instant Ocean' Brings Success To Ohio Firm

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A white powder called "Instant Ocean" symbolizes the wave of success a suburban Eastlake firm has been riding since it entered the aquarium business nine years ago.

"Our first concern was for the teaching and research of marine biology in all levels of education," said William E. Kelley, president of Aquarium Systems, Inc.

"But within the past five years, we have seen a new awareness by individuals for the world we live in and with the animals that live in that world," he said.

"Instant Ocean" creates an artificial sea water, one in which salt water fish can survive, and sales have boomed, Kelley said.

Circleville

During these same six years, the United States has been without trade agreement legislation and has thus lacked clear, agreed-upon guidelines to rectify and strengthen our international trade position. President Nixon recently emphasized the need for new trade reform legislation in his Special State of the Union Message to Congress and urged action on such proposals before the end of this session.

After many months of exhaustive investigation and deliberation, the House Ways and Means Committee reported a massive trade reform bill to the House earlier this month. Essentially the legislation would give the President wide-ranging authority to negotiate away various tariffs and non-tariff barriers to trade such as import quotas, product standards and labeling requirements. The President could also provide certain relief to domestic industries or workers injured by rising imports and would be able to take certain corrective actions against unfair trade practice of other nations or when the U.S. is running a large balance of payments deficit.

Many of the provisions in this complex legislation are highly controversial, however, and there is sure to be considerable debate on them when the House considers the bill later this month. One area of contest concerns just how much Presidential authority should be given, even though this trade reform bill contains provisions for congressional consultation and surveillance of both negotiations of trade agreements and of operations under them.

Perhaps the most highly volatile issue in all of the trade reform proposals is the granting of a most favored nation trade status to Russia. Without it, Russia—as is the case with all communist countries except Poland and Yugoslavia—would continue to be subject to the higher statutory rates of duty, as opposed to the lower rates conferred on imports from all other countries. The bill stipulates that this status can only be conferred if the country in question recognizes the right of emigration. This provision is intended to help force an end to Russian suppression of Soviet Jews attempting to leave the U.S.S.R., since the Soviet Union is extremely anxious to trade with the United States on a most favored nation basis.

Other major provisions in the trade reform bill likely to cause extended debate are those dealing with import relief and adjustment assistance for American workers and firms threatened by import competition. Besides making it much easier to provide relief to domestic industries injured by rising imports, the bill would also liberalize and increase government assistance to workers made jobless by imports.

With these issues and others to settle both in the House and then in the Senate, the final trade reform bill probably will not be sent to the President until sometime early next year.

Random Auto Checks Successful

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Statistics from the state highway patrol are helping convince the federal government that Ohio's random inspection of motor vehicles may be better than the mandatory annual inspection the feds proposed.

"Our death rates are much lower than those from states with the mandatory inspections," patrol Maj. Donald Manley said.

In addition, he said, Ohio gets many spin-off benefits from its inspections—drunk drivers, stolen cars and no operator's license.

Manley said he thinks the Ohio random inspection program would get federal approval within the next few weeks.

The National Highway Traffic Administration recently issued minimum federal standards for autos in an effort to force all states to adopt a mandatory inspection program.

The agency threatened to cut 10 per cent of a state's highway funds if it didn't comply.

Thirty-one states have periodic vehicle inspection programs and nine others, including Ohio, have spot or random checks.

"I think that word random first threw them," Manley said, "but I believe they were impressed after learning what our checks were all about."

Ohio has 27 inspection teams—two mechanics and a patrolman—that roam the state, setting up vehicle inspection stops.

In addition, each of the state's 1,327 highway patrolmen are on inspection duty. They can keep unsafe cars from moving until they are fixed.

"Less than 5 per cent of Ohio accidents are caused by defective vehicles," Manley said. "Speed and drinking driving cause most of them."

Mandatory inspections requiring taking the vehicle to a garage—privately owned or state-operated—would cost more than $100 million a year and inconvenience the motorist, the Patrol feels.

Mandatory Inspections haven't worked too well in state's that have them, said Manley. They cost around $5 each for the motorist and there have been repeated charges of kickbacks for having an inspection station franchise. A regular garage customer might find it easier to get an approved sticker.

Loud Boom Heard In 6-County Area

KENDALLVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Authorities in northeastern Indiana said today they were swamped with calls Sunday night asking about a loud boom heard over a six-county wide area in Indiana and in northwestern Ohio.

Officials speculated that it was a sonic boom, but said there were some doubts because it was heard over such a wide path. There also was conjecture that it may have been a mild earthquake, and there were some reports that the boom was connected with recent reports of unidentified flying objects.

A similar boom was heard a few weeks ago over a large portion of the eastern United States and one scientific explanation was that it could have been a meteor entering the earth's atmosphere.

"Our job is to prevent accidents," Manley said. "We think what we are doing now accomplishes it to a better degree."

Night Club Thugs Get 'Thousands'

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Police in northern Kentucky and Cincinnati today searched for two bandits who robbed Newport's plush Beverly Hills nightclub of "thousands of dollars."

Suburban Southgate and Fort Thomas police said seven employees were bound and gagged by the ski-masked robbers. Six of the employees were struck with pistols.

The men, described as "tall and muscular" broke into the club around 5:30 a.m. Monday and captured three workmen there for remodeling.

As employees arrived, they were bound, gagged and struck if they resisted.

Bookkeeper Mrs. Charlotte Dorning, 58, said the gunmen forced her to open two safes.

"There were all the receipts taken in Sunday night. It was supposed to have been our best night ever," she said.

Police said the gunmen knew their way around the club and where the safes were located.

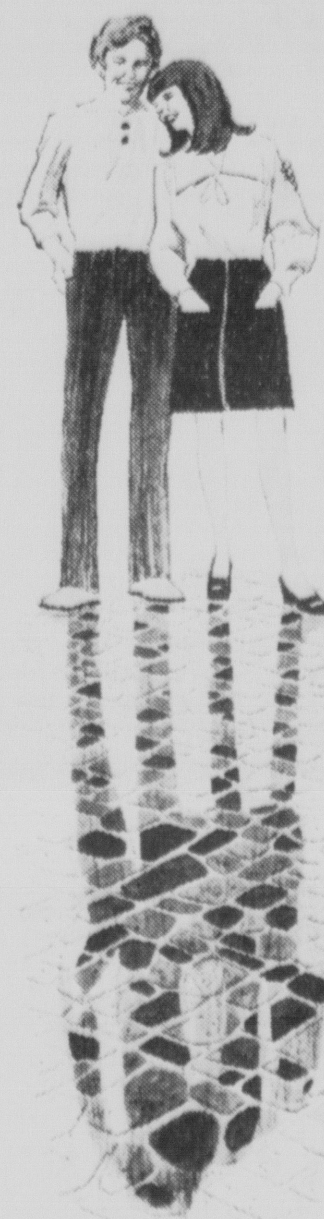

The men escaped about four hours after the break-in taking Mrs. Dorning's 1965 auto.

Cemetery Ethics Group Formed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Four of Ohio's largest cemetery associations announced today formation of a special ethics committee to investigate complaints against cemetery operators in the state.

The special panel was organized by the Ohio Association of Cemetery Superintendents and Officials, the Ohio Cemetery Executives Association, the Ohio Cemetery Association and the Catholic Cemeteries of Ohio.

The committee will investigate complaints and, if it determines that an act violates the code of ethics for operating cemeteries, will instruct the owner involved to correct the practice.

Harsha Reports

BY WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
Sixth District Of Ohio

Since the last major trade negotiations concluded six years ago, the world trade picture has changed dramatically. For the United States, these shifts in the world market have taken, if anything, a particularly negative course. American goods have been discriminated against overseas; the balance between imports and exports has vastly altered; the dollar has been devalued more than once and the U.S. has become much more dependent on overseas oil.

None of these factors has augered well for the economy of this country, and many of them have had a great deal to do with our increasing inflations.

New Court Techniques Discussed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A New York State judge told a session of the National Conference of Metropolitan Courts Sunday that one technique that has improved New York court operations is to have juries selected outside the presence of the judges.

Judge William Groat of Jamaica, N.Y., called the jury selection system a great time saver. He said it was one of the techniques that makes New York's master docket system work.

"The lawyers know a jury is waiting and they have to come to trial or settlement," he said.

Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) Common Pleas Court Judge Thomas Parrino defended the personal docket system in a debate with Judge Groat. Parrino said that under the personal docket system, Common Pleas Court here has cut the backlog of cases from about 22,000 to 17,000.

The personal docket system, under which a judge is assigned a share of cases and is responsible for handling them from beginning to end, was adopted here in January, 1972.

Parrino said it was not likely that Cuyahoga County would return to the master docket system but the New York jury selection system may be studied further. He noted, however, that that system could not be used in criminal cases.

High Court Nixes Hearing On Vo-Ed Schools Lawsuit

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court will not consider a suit challenging state aid to vocational schools, E. Dennis Barnes, who filed the suit, said Monday.

Barnes, a member of the Upper Sandusky School Board, said he was notified by the high court that his suit was not explicit enough about why he wants next month's vote on a proposed vocational school levy off the ballot in Wyandot and Crawford counties.

Barnes contends the Ohio Constitution only permits funding of regular schools, not schools that teach skills.

He has a similar suit pending in the state court of appeals in Lima.

'Instant Ocean' Brings Success To Ohio Firm

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A white powder called "Instant Ocean" symbolizes the wave of success a suburban Eastlake firm has been riding since it entered the aquarium business nine years ago.

"Our first concern was for the teaching and research of marine biology in all levels of education," said William E. Kelley, president of Aquarium Systems, Inc.

"But within the past five years, we have seen a new awareness by individuals for the world we live in and with the animals that live in that world," he said.

"Instant Ocean" creates an artificial sea water, one in which salt water fish can survive, and sales have boomed, Kelley said.

Goodwill Rehabilitates Humans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Twenty-year-old Sam left a mental hospital to go to Goodwill Industries of Central Ohio to become a productive human being. Not many gave him a chance to succeed.

"The social workers were sure they didn't want him to come out," said Dick Oestreich, Goodwill's director of rehabilitation. "At first, he drove us nuts, but we didn't give up."

Oestreich said, "We worked with Sam and gave him a lot of attention. He has started turning the corner. He has been on four job interviews and recently got a job. But he came back to us two days later. He apparently got homesick for Goodwill."

"But on the next job, he will probably stick," Oestreich confidently said.

He should know. While at Goodwill, the 34-year-old director has helped a lot of people turn the corner toward improved self-esteem and gainful employment.

In fact, Goodwill of Central Ohio leads all the 152 organizations in the country in training and placement of handicapped persons.

In 1972, the local organization placed 360 such persons for the top honor. Goodwill has surpassed that number this year. In the first nine months, Goodwill has found jobs for 416 persons, 50 ahead of its closest competitor in Toledo.

Oestreich attributes the success to an aggressive staff, good programs and an effective philosophy.

"Goodwill started 70 years ago as an employer of the handicapped when it was difficult," he said. "But now we are more in the business of getting people on the outside. Our general approach is go do as much as possible to get people jobs on the outside."

He said four full-time staff persons "look all over town" for jobs. He said they average nearly 50 a month.

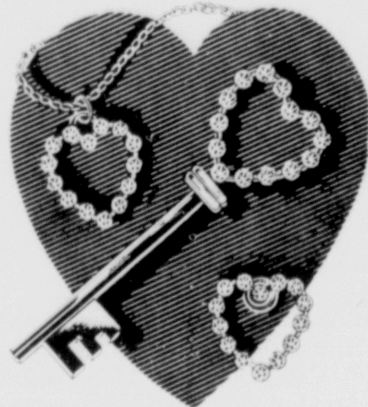

Oestreich said the job finders tell employers, "Here's someone that's good for them. They're not selling the idea that it's good to hire the handicapped, but to hire the person who has been rehabilitated and can do a job."

Oestreich said Goodwill trains people to fix toasters and televisions, repair shoes, clean clothing, serve food, refinish furniture, perform janitorial services and handle work in a warehouse or office.

He is critical of mental institutions that only care for people, but do not help them to get along in life.

"The damn institutions have been warehousing people," he said. "In 15 years, a person in a hospital doesn't know the difference between a ham-burger stand and a gas station."

He hopes to remedy that. In the near future, he said Goodwill will set up an operation at Orient State Hospital, south of Columbus to train patients for jobs.

Ohio Congressmen Split On Nixon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than a fourth of Ohio's Congressional delegation said Monday they would support, or seriously consider, President Nixon's impeachment, expected to come up in discussion before the House today.

The Congressmen were among 11 of Ohio's 23 U.S. House members who were asked the question: "Do you advocate impeachment proceedings against President Nixon in view of the Watergate tapes developments and the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox?"

They were Reps. Charles A. Vanik, D-22, Cleveland; John F. Seiberling, Jr., D-14, Akron; Louis Stokes, D-21, Cleveland, and Charles A. Mosher, R-13, Oberlin.

Two other Republicans, Charles W. Whalen, R-3, Dayton, and Tennyson Guyer, R-4, Findlay, said they would seriously consider impeachment if sufficient evidence was presented to prove the President had violated the law.

Five other Congressmen, four of them Republicans, said they were firmly opposed to the idea. They were Reps. Ronald D. Clancy, R-2, Cincinnati; Ralph Regula, R-16, Navarre; J. William Stanton, D-20, Painesville; Samuel L. Devine, R-12, Columbus and Chalmers P. Wylie, R-15, Worthington.

Other Congressmen, many of whom were enroute to Washington for today's session, could not be reached for comment.

Seiberling, a member of the House

Judiciary Committee, said he will introduce a resolution today calling for an investigation of the President's actions as a prelude to impeachment.

"I'm leaning toward voting for impeachment," he said.

Republican Guyer said he would not advocate impeachment, "but I'm not going to dodge the issue either."

Asked if there were enough votes in the House to call for impeachment, Guyer said, "It's not impossible under the present climate."

"However, that's like asking a jury before the trial what the verdict will be," he cautioned. "Of course I will consider seriously the question of impeachment should such evidence warrant it," he added.

Rep. Wylie strongly opposed impeachment. "What crime has been committed?" he asked.

"I'm not going to say anything until it's been proven that the President committed a crime...It's not a crime to fire somebody," he said.

Devine said, "I know of no illegal act that would make Nixon subject to impeachment. Second, this Watergate tapes thing has been blown way out of proportion. There used to be a presumption of innocence in this country."

He added, "They couldn't beat him at the polls so they're trying to beat him another way."

In other reaction to Nixon's actions and talk of impeachment, about 160 members of United Auto Workers Local 22 at the Chrysler stamping plant at Twinsburg voted unanimously Sunday in favor of a resolution calling for Nixon to resign. The voters were among 4,500 UAW members at the plant, a union source said.

And a telephone poll conducted by a Dayton radio station WADI tallied 61 per cent of 403 callers favoring impeaching the president.

Coal Pollution Cost Spiral Seen

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A coal industry report claims metropolitan Wheeling could suffer a $333 million economic loss by 1976 if tighter air quality standards force the closure of the area's high-sulfur coal mines.

Walter J. Huelsman of the firm of Coopers and Lybrand, a Cleveland, Ohio, consulting company, told a legislative interim committee Monday that $136 million in direct spending power would multiply into the $333 million loss "through the rippling effect."

Huelsman said coal companies working in the three West Virginia counties—Ohio, Marshall and Wetzel—and neighboring Belmont and Harrison counties in Ohio "would in effect be forced to close down if the pending 1975 environmental regulations on air quality are maintained."

The report, financed by nine coal companies and endorsed by the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce, is based on the premise that all mines in the five-county region would be shut down. It says 17,700 persons would lose their jobs if the closures became reality.

TV Voters Face 2.43 Mill Levy

Voters in the Teays Valley School District will be asked to decide on Issue No. 11 on the November 6 ballot which is a 2.43 mill bond issue.

Passage of the issue will mean a net increase of 1.43 mills for additional construction on existing buildings because existing bond millage will be reduced one mill.

Construction will include two kindergarten rooms at each of the three elementary school sites; 24 classrooms, a multi-purpose room, office and storage spaces added to the present high school building. The high school addition would be a two-story structure added at the southwest corner.

From its first occupation in 1962, the high school building's enrollment has increased from 2,062 to this year's enrollment of 2,831.

Addition of the proposed building onto the high school building will make it possible to overlap junior and senior high schools effectively. This would provide a full program for both levels. Overlapping would mean less extreme hours and a less complicated busing program.

A new state law requires all school districts in Ohio to have kindergarten facilities by Sept. 1965. Presently only 16 districts in the state lack such facilities.

Although the levy will appear on the ballot as 2.43, the retirement of an existing portion of the bonds on existing buildings, will decrease the current bond millage by one full mill. As a result of the reduction, the new cost will be an increase of only 1.43 mills in the present tax situation.

For example, property worth $10,000 and taxed on 40 per cent of the tax duplicate value would show an increase in taxation of $5.72 annually; $20,000 property, $11.44 annually; $30,000 property, $17.16 annually; 100 acre farm, $21.45 annually.

On a bond issue, as the valuation of the district increases, the bond retirement rate would decrease the millage in proportion.

Marcos Announces Referendum In 1974

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos says he will call another referendum next year on his martial law regime, but he ruled out any return to politics as usual.

Marcos told the Manila Times Journal that actions such as the lifting of martial law or convening the interim national assembly provided for in the new Philippine constitution are not planned.

general disapproval of the firings of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, and Nixon's refusal to submit Watergate tapes to a federal grand jury.

"Mr. Nixon, who has shown some serious misjudgments in the past year or so, is misjudging the American public if he thinks the Fox-Richardson incident will be accepted without stirring some terrible questions," stated the East Liverpool Review in a editorial in today's edition.

The newspaper, which previously has supported Nixon, continued: "And if the American public is misjudging the President, he cannot blame his own aides, the Congress or the press as has been his more recent practice."

The East Liverpool newspaper said that Nixon "... while clinging to his constitutional rights... may have lost the respect of the nation..."

The President has shown an "inability to provide what so many Americans have been hoping for— vindication of the claims of innocence, a conclusion to the ugly hints as to what went on in the Oval Office, the moving on to the important challenges the nation faces on domestic and foreign fronts," the editorial continued.

"...Who can believe now that the function of the Watergate probe, returned to the Department of Justice, will be carried out 'with fairness and vigor,' as the White House states?" it asked.

In a Monday editorial, the Cincinnati Post and Times Star asked: "Is Nixon above the law?"

It continued: "In America we enjoy the rule of law, not the rule of men. It is an ugly, shocking and ominous moment when the President defies such a basic American principle."

At the same time, the Columbus Citizen-Journal was optimistic that Justice Department official Henry Petersen could pick up the Watergate investigation and run with it.

The newspaper also cautioned that final judgement of the President should be withheld until Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi makes his report public on the Watergate tapes. Nixon has offered to let Stennis listen to the tapes, then make a summary of his viewpoints available to the Senate Watergate committee.

If the Watergate grand jury accepts this method of viewing the tapes, that "almost certainly would put out the current impeachment fire," the editorial said.

Soviet Dissident Reports Arab Threats

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov says his life was threatened by two Arab terrorists who told him to withdraw his support of the Israeli cause.

Sakharov, a physicist who is given credit for developing the Soviet H-bomb, said the two Arabs forced their way into his apartment on Sunday. He said they questioned him for 80 minutes and told him to be silent about the Arab-Israeli war or face the consequences.

He said the Arabs, who identified themselves as members of the Black September guerrilla group, left without harming him or his family.

The Akron Beacon Journal, which previously had said Nixon should release the Watergate tapes, in an editorial Monday said the President "is clearly in contempt of court" for his refusal to do so.

"He is clearly guilty of obstructing justice," The Beacon Journal said. "He has sought to set himself above the law, which he is not and cannot be."

The Toledo Blade, in another Monday editorial, called the entire affair "madness run rampant."

Asked the Blade: "How much longer...can we endure a President who arrogantly places himself above the law, defies the courts, thumbs his nose at morality and propriety in public office, and stops at nothing...in his insatiable thirst to cover up the wrongdoings of Watergate?"

A Cleveland Plain Dealer editorial Monday called the impeachment choice a grave one and said "It must be considered against a background of international tensions and domestic and economic difficulties. It presents the country with its greatest constitutional crisis."

Ohio Congressmen Split On Nixon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than a fourth of Ohio's Congressional delegation said Monday they would support, or seriously consider, President Nixon's impeachment, expected to come up in discussion before the House today.

The Congressmen were among 11 of Ohio's 23 U.S. House members who were asked the question: "Do you advocate impeachment proceedings against President Nixon in view of the Watergate tapes developments and the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox?"

They were Reps. Charles A. Vanik, D-22, Cleveland; John F. Seiberling, Jr., D-14, Akron; Louis Stokes, D-21, Cleveland, and Charles A. Mosher, R-13, Oberlin.

Two other Republicans, Charles W. Whalen, R-3, Dayton, and Tennyson Guyer, R-4, Findlay, said they would seriously consider impeachment if sufficient evidence was presented to prove the President had violated the law.

Five other Congressmen, four of them Republicans, said they were firmly opposed to the idea. They were Reps. Ronald D. Clancy, R-2, Cincinnati; Ralph Regula, R-16, Navarre; J. William Stanton, D-20, Painesville; Samuel L. Devine, R-12, Columbus and Chalmers P. Wylie, R-15, Worthington.

Other Congressmen, many of whom were enroute to Washington for today's session, could not be reached for comment.

Coal Pollution

Cost Spiral Seen

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A coal industry report claims metropolitan Wheeling could suffer a $333 million economic loss by 1976 if tighter air quality standards force the closure of the area's high-sulfur coal mines.

Walter J. Huelsman of the firm of Coopers and Lybrand, a Cleveland, Ohio, consulting company, told a legislative interim committee Monday that $136 million in direct spending power would multiply into the $333 million loss "through the rippling effect."

Huelsman said coal companies working in the three West Virginia counties—Ohio, Marshall and Wetzel—and neighboring Belmont and Harrison counties in Ohio "would in effect be forced to close down if the pending 1975 environmental regulations on air quality are maintained."

The report, financed by nine coal companies and endorsed by the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce, is based on the premise that all mines in the five-county region would be shut down. It says 17,700 persons would lose their jobs if the closures became reality.

Rice, Peanuts Affects New Peanut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz is thinking about calling a news conference this week to announce new strategy for seeking congressional overhaul of federal rice and peanut programs, informed sources say.

The tentative plan is to announce details of the 1974 acreage programs for rice and peanuts under existing law.

In addition, the sources say, Butz is ready to unveil a plan to seek congressional permission to move those crops under the target-price support concept that will go into effect next year for wheat, feed grains and upland cotton.

Butz also wants extra-long staple cottons (ELS) included in the target-price method, the sources say.

Under the target-price system, established by Congress in the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, producers are guaranteed a relatively high price for a portion of their crop needed to meet domestic and export demands. Should the cash market price average fall below the target, government subsidies will be paid to growers to make up the difference. If market prices are higher — as they appear now for 1974 — no payments are made.

Peanuts, rice and ELS cotton are locked separately into older programs which call for what Butz and other farm officials say are unrealistically high supports and tough restraints.

In a speech to a co-op in Syracuse, N.Y., last Friday, Butz spoke of some of the limiting factors in agriculture. "Perhaps the most frustrating of all limits are governmental restraints," he said. "We've taken most of them off the major commodities. We still have government restraints on some commodities where we don't need them anymore, like peanuts, rice and extra-long staple cotton."

Sources have said the proposal calls for a peanut target price of about $253 per ton, compared with the average national price support this year of $328.50 per ton, a boost under the old law's escalator requirement of $43.50 from $972.

The sources say rice might be proposed for a target of around $5.50 per hundredweight, compared with a 1973 price-support loan of $6.07 per 100 pounds.

Readers Give Advice

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed "SMELLS BAD IN ROANOKE" wrote to say she was extremely clean about herself and her clothing, but she smelled a terrible odor about herself, which nobody said they smelled, and it was driving her out of her mind.

I had the same problem for four years. Finally my doctor discovered I had diabetes. He put me on a low carbohydrate diet and the smell left me.

CURED NOW

DEAR ABBY: This is my 50th year as a physician and I have seen a number of cases like the one described by "SMELLS BAD."

Saxbe Calls For Action On Crisis

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Strong, immediate action is needed to deal with the energy crisis, trade problems, inflation and the plight of the nation's railroads, U.S. Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, said here Sunday.

"The energy crisis is probably the greatest problem facing us, and it's been coming upon us for a long time," he said. "But you still have people in Washington who think there isn't any energy crisis, and who don't want to do anything because they don't want to make anybody mad."

"When the lights go out and when there isn't enough oil to heat American homes, these do-nothing politicians are going to find out just what the people think," Saxbe said.

Saxbe made the remarks before a meeting of the National Oil Jobbers Council.

The Ohio Senator listed eight steps he said must be taken to solve the nation's short-range energy problems:

—Construction of the Alaskan pipeline.

—Construction of five new oil refineries in the U.S.

—Incentives for oil industries to search for continental and off-shore fuel reserves.

—Removal of air quality restrictions against coal.

—Adjustment of auto emission control standards.

—Development of nuclear power plants.

—Development of 30-miles-per-gallon automobiles.

—Passage of legislation to save the railroads. A bill sponsored by Saxbe calls for all major U.S. railroads to be merged into a single railroad corporation operated by private industry.

Blame Spaceman For Auto Crash

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Jackie Lee Sparks, 20, escaped serious injury Sunday when his car ran off a county road near here and rolled over three times.

Sparks told police the mishap occurred when he swerved to avoid a man in a silver suit.

Sparks could offer no further details, and officers were unable to locate the uniformed man. No charges were filed.

That person should consult an ear, nose, and throat specialist for possible "Ozena" (stink nose), which causes a breath so foul that everything smells bad to her. The condition is the result of a chronic infection in nose and sinuses causing upper respiratory membranes to degenerate.

ARIZONA M.D.

DEAR ABBY: I also smelled bad and didn't know why. My doctor looked into my navel with a flashlight and that's where the smell was coming from. He cleaned it out and advised me to keep it clean with a bit of cotton on a toothpick, and my problem was solved.

ON THE BUTTON

DEAR ABBY: Dr. Marion B. Sultzberger, a famous dermatologist, once told me that he had a patient who came to him with the same problem as "SMELLS BAD." The doctor had the man strip. He still smelled bad. Then the doctor told the man to remove his gold wedding band. That was the culprit! In some people, their body chemistry and certain metals create a very unpleasant odor.

J.T., CORONA DEL MAR, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that lady who smells bad my brother had the same problem. He went to doctors and nobody could help him. Finally an old man told him to drink four ounces of dry white wine four times a day before meals, and again at bedtime. He did and in a week the odor was gone, and he was like a new man.

COFFEYVILLE, KAS.

DEAR ABBY: "SMELLS BAD" should make an appointment with her dentist immediately. I had that problem, and didn't know it was caused by an infected wisdom tooth. When my dentist discovered it he was amazed that I did not have a toothache that raised the top of my head. I never had a twinge of pain, but that terrible odor nearly drove me nuts!

OKAY NOW

DEAR ABBY: If "SMELLS BAD" wears glasses she should check the nose piece of her glasses. I smelled something vile for months and couldn't detect its source. Finally I discovered it was the perspiration collected in the nose piece of my glasses that was causing it. I bought new glasses, and clean them with alcohol regularly, and haven't had any trouble since.

SMELLS GOOD IN BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: It's the woman's gall bladder. A friend of mine kept sniffing everywhere for "dead mice" for six months. Finally, a doctor examined her and found that she had gall bladder trouble. She was smelling her own infected gall bladder!

R.L.D. IN VERMONT

DEAR ABBY: The woman who smells bad should be asked if she has had her ears pierced lately. When I had mine pierced, I smelled bad for months before I found out I had an infection in both ears from the piercing.

HAD IT IN ALABAMA

DEAR ABBY: Tell "SMELLS BAD" to check her ears. I have itchy ears, and I used to feel like there was something crawling to my ears, so I would scratch them with whatever was handy. Once I scratched my ear with a crochet needle. It caused an infection deep inside my ear which gave off a frightful odor, but I didn't discover it until I went to a doctor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz is thinking about calling a news conference this week to announce new strategy for seeking congressional overhaul of federal rice and peanut programs, informed sources say.

The tentative plan is to announce details of the 1974 acreage programs for rice and peanuts under existing law.

In addition, the sources say, Butz is ready to unveil a plan to seek congressional permission to move those crops under the target-price support concept that will go into effect next year for wheat, feed grains and upland cotton.

Butz also wants extra-long staple cottons (ELS) included in the target-price method, the sources say.

Under the target-price system, established by Congress in the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, producers are guaranteed a relatively high price for a portion of their crop needed to meet domestic and export demands. Should the cash market price average fall below the target, government subsidies will be paid to growers to make up the difference. If market prices are higher — as they appear now for 1974 — no payments are made.

Peanuts, rice and ELS cotton are locked separately into older programs which call for what Butz and other farm officials say are unrealistically high supports and tough restraints.

In a speech to a co-op in Syracuse, N.Y., last Friday, Butz spoke of some of the limiting factors in agriculture.

"Perhaps the most frustrating of all limits are governmental restraints," he said. "We've taken most of them off the major commodities. We still have government restraints on some commodities where we don't need them anymore, like peanuts, rice and extra-long staple cotton."

Sources have said the proposal calls for a peanut target price of about $253 per ton, compared with the average national price support this year of $328.50 per ton, a boost under the old law's escalator requirement of $43.50 from $972.

The sources say rice might be proposed for a target of around $5.50 per hundredweight, compared with a 1973 price-support loan of $6.07 per 100 pounds.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the year ending January 1-December 31, 1973 Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) Can you deduct contributions to foreign charities?

(A) No. However, you may deduct contributions to a U.S. organization that transfers funds to a charitable foreign organization if the U.S. organization controls the use of the funds or if the foreign charity is merely an administrative arm of the U.S. organization. Also, contributions made directly to certain Canadian charities are deductible. The organization itself can tell you whether it qualifies.

(Q) Can a foster child qualify as a dependent?

(A) Yes. A foster child may qualify as your dependent if your home is his principal residence, he is a member of your household for the entire year and the other dependency tests are met, including your furnishing more than half of the child's total support.

(Q) I'm a salesman. Every year, I give each of my customers a little present. Can I deduct these business gifts on my income tax return?

(A) Expenses for business gifts made to an individual are deductible only to the extent that the total business gifts during the year to that individual do not exceed $25.

Not subject to this $25 rule are general business gifts to individuals of identical items costing you $4 or less, on which your name is clearly and permanently imprinted.

Diesel Fuel Tax Dodge Reported

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The use of home heating fuel in diesel-powered vehicles as a tax dodge is costing the federal government and the states millions of dollars in revenue annually, authorities say.

The two fuels are almost identical in chemical makeup, but the big difference is that diesel fuel, when it's used to power vehicles over public highways, is taxable. The No. 2 home heating fuel is considered a nontaxable necessity.

Robert Heller, director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Liquid Fuels Tax, suggests the scheme has cost this state about $10 million annually over the past 20 years.

A trucking trade publication, "Fleet Owner," says the loss nationwide might run as high as $1 billion annually.

Not only has the practice been costly in terms of tax dollars, but it continues at a time when many Americans have been warned that they may be in for a cold winter because of dwindling fuel oil supplies.

Diesel fuel, which sells for 34 to 36 cents a gallon is taxed at the rate of four cents per gallon on the federal level and eight cents by Pennsylvania. Home heating fuel sells in Pennsylvania for about 22 cents a gallon.

(Q) What are the rules for deducting prepaid interest?

(A) In general, most individual taxpayers who pay interest in advance for a period extending more than 12 months beyond the end of their current tax year must deduct this amount proportionately over the tax years involved. Interest paid in advance for a period not in excess of 12 months following the end of the tax year may be deducted in the year paid if the deduction does not cause a material distortion of income.

Fuel Shortage Takes Its Toll On Ohio's Schools

By SUE BOYER
Herald Staff Writer

The State Board of Education has urged the development of guidelines for fuel conservation following a report that Ohio schools may face a fuel shortage of three million gallons this winter.

A specially appointed seven-member committee has been named to assist in policy developments in this area. A recent survey cited 11 school districts have not been able to secure an adequate supply of fuel oil for the coming winter. The major problem is most of these districts is inclusion of buildings recently converted from coal to oil heat.

In most instances, fuel is allotted this year on the basis of last year's usage and this does not account for the new buildings or those with recently converted systems.

The survey also indicated the various types of heat in percentages of use in Ohio's school buildings. Natural gas supply heat to 70.3 per cent; fuel oil, 15.9 per cent; coal, 9.7 per cent; electricity, 4.1 per cent.

Among those 11 school districts in danger are Westerville District in Franklin County and Zane Trace District in Ross County.

Fuel for buses is a somewhat lesser problem. The suppliers for Pickaway County Schools have on the whole upped the price but do plan to supply regular allocations.

In talking with the four county and city superintendents of Pickaway County, we find that the possibility of a fuel shortage does not present any major problems at present.

John Henn, Superintendent of Logan Elm Schools, reports that he has contacted Standard Oil of Ohio concerning possible fuel shortage and they have guaranteed to supply the same allotment as last year. The fuel comes to the schools in monthly allocations and Logan Elm is not entitled to any more until the November allocation is due.

Most of the storage tanks are at least half full at present and Henn said he believes the school system will be all right unless unexpected critical weather conditions would occur before the next fuel supply comes. If the weather conditions would remain as predicted, he said they may even have a surplus going into the month of December.

Since the Circleville City Schools are all heated by gas, the crisis would affect them less directly. Superintendent Fritz Jacobs said he had not been given official word from the gas company and did not at the present expect any crisis to arise. If however, one did occur, Jacobs stated he would cross that bridge when he came to it.

Teays Valley District's suppliers have also guaranteed to supply allocations equal to that of last year. Superintendent Benis Lutz stated that the system would probably not face a major crisis either since the district has no new buildings nor recently converted heating systems.

Although Westfall School District has a variety of heating systems, only one of the schools has the fuel oil system. That particular building is also equipped for coal heating. Superintendent Gordon Massie stated that if a shortage became harsh enough, they could make do with coal in the one building.

He stated the board had obtained estimates this past summer on the cost of converting the coal systems in the district to fuel oil. In view of the possible problem, they forestalled such renovations until a time when the fuel situation was more stable.

Massie said the district had enough fuel oil on hand to heat the one building which utilizes this type of system to last until February. Standard Oil has said they would supply the school as long as their supplies lasted.

a severe problem in the future concerning natural gas supply, he had not been made aware of it. The gas company has not made any statements regarding possible shortage to the other three school districts either.

If the fuel shortage does become severe enough to merit the closing of schools, State Assistant Superintendent Paul Spayde believes those lost days will not have to be made up.

Spayde thinks this problem would fall into the category stipulated by Ohio law which allows for days missed due to utility failure. A closer look at that law will be made if and when the need arises.

See Woman Moderator Of Church

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Rev. Dr. Walter Bingham says he believes the general assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will elect a woman to succeed him as moderator of the 1,300,000 member denomination.

Dr. Bingham said increasing the role of laity and women clergy will be the prime task of the six-day assembly, which begins Friday at Cincinnati.

The black Louisville minister compared the drive to give women a larger role to the movement in the 1960s to try to include more blacks and other minority groups in positions of responsibility.

He said he considered his election as moderator of the predominantly white denomination a symbol of devotion to equality of races within the church.

It is likely a woman will be elected moderator for the next two-year term, Dr. Bingham said, "putting her in a position of visibility to the church and the rest of the world."

Dr. Bingham said he believes his travels as moderator advanced the cause of the church's approximately 50,000 blacks, and that a woman in the job would speed acceptance of her sex.

Eastern Europe Eyes U.S. Grains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eastern Europe, a seven-nation bloc that has been dependent upon the Soviet Union for much of its grain imports, is expected to turn more to U.S. farmers by 1980, the Agriculture Department said today.

The prediction was included in a new study by the Economic Research Service. Although Eastern Europe will need less imported grain over-all, the U.S. portion should increase from the current level, the report said.

Increased livestock production, undertaken to meet a rising demand for red meat, also will mean a larger market for U.S. soybeans and soybean meal, the report said.

Canada has competed in the Olympic Games since 1900.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Do door-to-door salesmen have a legal right to come calling at your home? Generally speaking, they do indeed, according to the United States Supreme Court.

"The knocker on the front door," the Court has ruled, "is an invitation."

But invitations can be revoked. And one way you can revoke this particular invitation is by posting a notice saying "NO SOLICITING, PLEASE" — or words to that effect.

Any solicitor who disregards such a notice would probably be considered a trespasser. This, in turn, would reduce your chances of liability in case he happens to stumble over a stray toy or trip on a broken step.

For the duty of a householder toward a trespasser is slight. You are not required to clear away hazards on your premises, but merely to refrain from injuring him recklessly or on purpose.

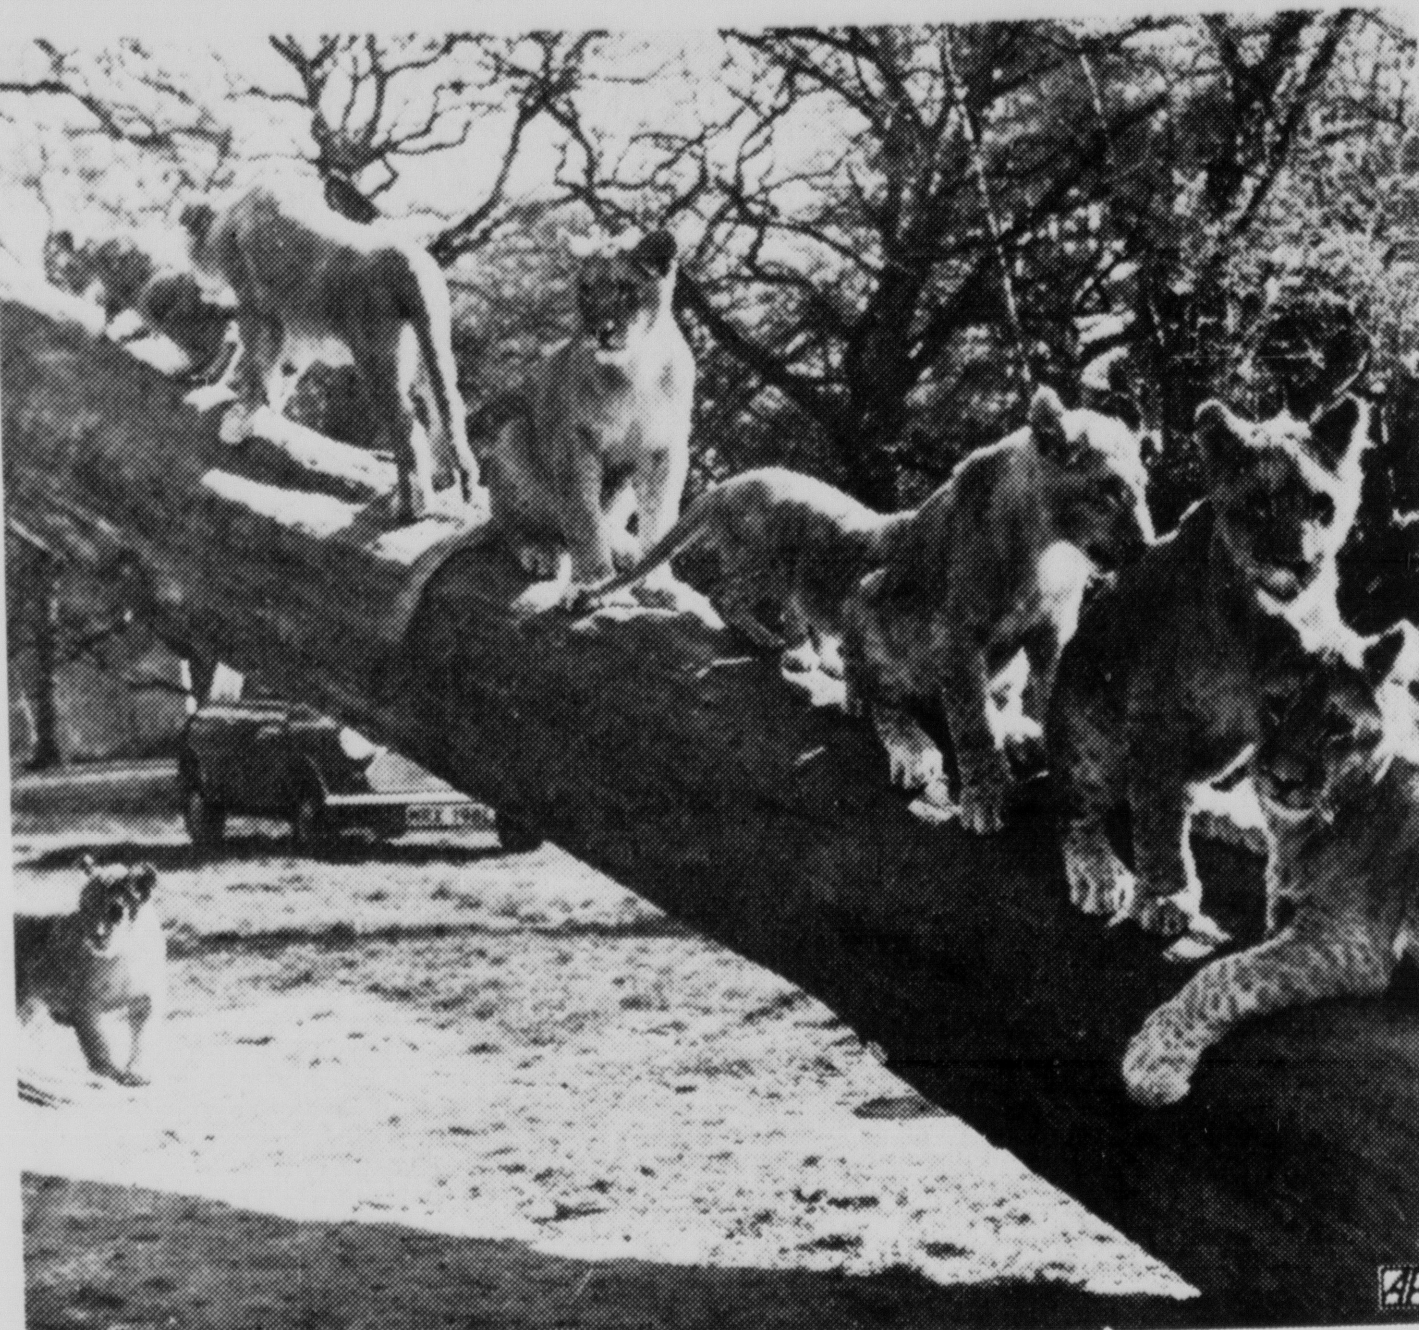

What about "NO SOLICITING" signs on apartment houses? Often posted by landlords, these signs have been attacked in court as an infringement of free speech — that is, the freedom to speak directly to individual tenants.

But courts have held that this is a reasonable and lawful way for a landlord to protect his tenants from being pestered.

This does not mean, however, that the landlord has unlimited control over access to the apartments in his building. In one case, an apartment house owner forbade any and all tradesmen to enter his building. When a grocer arrived to deliver fresh vegetables to a tenant, the landlord threw him out bodily.

In short order the grocer filed suit for damages, and the landlord was held liable on grounds of assault and battery. The court said the tenant had the right of access to his own apartment, and, by ordering merchandise to be delivered, he had extended that right to the grocer.

Golda Meir Sleeps Less, Worries

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir has been sleeping less, worrying more and chain-smoking her usual three packs of cigarettes a day since Israel went to war 18 days ago.

She has spent the days and much of the nights of fighting in an unpretentious office in the Defense Ministry compound, getting home when she could to the two-family house she shares with her son in suburban Ramat Aviv.

Her only public appearances have been to visit wounded troops and thank American pilots who flew in arms and other military equipment. Otherwise, as one observer put it, "she's playing general to the generals."

The gray-haired, 75-year-old grandmother came from Jerusalem to spend Yom Kippur with her son Menachem, a cellist and the head of Tel Aviv University's Academy of Music, and his family.

Instead, she spent the most sacred Jewish holy day in the second-floor corner office at the Defense Ministry, making feverish preparations for the Arab attack that was developing.

Once war began, Mrs. Meir canceled all appointments and cleared her schedule for military matters and the political and diplomatic decisions arising from the conflict.

"All her thoughts are with the war, and she keeps to the office because that's where she's most needed," says Lou Kadar, her old friend and assistant.

The premier has kept to her usual 7 a.m. rising time and breakfast. With her bodyguards, Mrs. Meir makes the five-minute drive to her office and the hours of reading reports, attending briefings and holding meetings begin.

She likes to go home for lunch and a little rest, but the demands of running a war have often kept her in the office through lunch and dinner.

"She's a good eater and she likes everything," including the food from a 24-hour cafeteria in her office building, Mrs. Kadar said. But given the choice, she likes French or Jewish food, especially gefilte fish and borsch.

On normal days, Mrs. Meir gets home at 7 or 8 p.m., works on handicraft or attends a concert if she has no official engagements. But Mrs. Kadar said she has worked often until 1 a.m. and once until 3 a.m. since the war started.

In her few free moments, Mrs. Meir tries to keep track of her family. Fifteen of them, including her granddaughter's husband, are in the army.

"They are okay," said Mrs. Kadar, "but when we tell her about people we know whose sons have fallen, she takes it badly. But she goes on. She hasn't been nervous. She's worried like everybody, but she doesn't show it."

Mrs. Meir "hasn't changed her habits," Mrs. Kadar said. "She's still the same simple person she was 50 years ago" when she arrived in Palestine from the United States as a bride.

"She feels okay; she is okay," Mrs. Kadar said. "She's like French wine; she improves with age."

Ford Strike Seen Possible

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A United Auto Workers union leader has warned of a possible strike at the big Ford Motor Co. engine plant and foundry complex here.

Thurman Payne, acting president of United Auto Workers Local 1250, said Monday that negotiations on local issues are almost stalemated. After more than 30 bargaining sessions, he said, the union leaders "are not in a position at this point to make any report to the membership."

Payne said there are more than 100 issues yet to be resolved before a 10 a.m. Monday deadline. Even if a national agreement is reached, he said, it is possible that the 10,000 workers at the three plants may strike. Payne said a strike at the huge engine plant complex could "tie up 68 per cent of Ford's operations across the country."

Fuel Shortage Takes Its Toll On Ohio's Schools

By SUE BOYER
Herald Staff Writer

The State Board of Education has urged the development of guidelines for fuel conservation following a report that Ohio schools may face a fuel shortage of three million gallons this winter.

A specially appointed seven-member committee has been named to assist in policy developments in this area. A recent survey cited 11 school districts have not been able to secure an adequate supply of fuel oil for the coming winter. The major problem is most of these districts is inclusion of buildings recently converted from coal to oil heat.

WCH Stays Atop Grid Heap

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Newark Catholic replaced Marion Pleasant as the Class A high school football leader today in The Associated Press state ratings.

Pleasant's 31-8 loss to Class AA River Valley, ending Ohio's longest ever winning streak at 44 games last week somersaulted the defending small school champions to fourth place.

Meanwhile, Warren Western Reserve in Class AAA and Washington Court House in Class AA preserved impressive leads in the other two divisions.

Western Reserve, carrying a 24-

game winning streak that includes seven 1973 victories, rolled up 292 points to 215 for Cincinnati Moeller, the No. 2 team again in Class AAA.

Washington Court House, which has posted seven straight shutouts this season, earned 225 points in Class AA. Minerva was second again with 199 points.

Newark Catholic, a former Class A state king, moved up from the second spot a week ago. The unbeaten Green Wave, 6-0-0, collected 210 points to 195 for runnerup Cory Rawson. Ada was third again with 164 points.

Pleasant has won the last two AP state titles as well as the first Class A playoff crown last fall.

McDonald was sixth in Class A, followed by Portsmouth Notre Dame, Sugar Grove Berne Union, Norwalk St. Paul and Kirtland. St. Paul, a former Ohio champion with a 7-0-0 start this season, was the lone newcomer to the small school top ten.

Canton McKinley, an ex-Ohio champion in Class AAA, was the lone new face among the big schools. The Bulldogs, once beaten in seven games, surged into the No. 10 spot.

Cincinnati Bacon, tenth a week ago and a 14-0 victim of Moeller, fell to 13th.

Akron Garfield again was third and Massillon fourth in Class AAA.

Zanesville was fifth, Fremont Ross sixth, Newark seventh, Barberton eighth, Youngstown Mooney ninth and McKinley No. 10.

Newark Licking Valley climbed into the Class AA tenth slot, replacing Bellaire. Bellaire, tied 0-0 by Wheeling, W. Va., Central, tumbled to a tie for 19th this week.

Cincinnati Reading was third in Class AA and then came Ironton, Dayton Jefferson, Lisbon Beaver Local, Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary, Columbus Watterston, Cleveland Benedictine and Licking Valley.

A state-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters conducts the ratings each week.

Buckeyes No. 1 In Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The first nine teams in The Associated Press college football ratings held onto their positions today, but Alabama closed in on top-ranked Ohio State and Nebraska nosed back into the Top Ten.

Ohio State defeated Indiana 37-7 Saturday and received 35 first-place ballots and 1,126 points from the 61 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in this week's poll.

Runner-up Alabama earned 12 votes for the top spot and 1,042 points for a 42-21 triumph over previously unbeaten Tennessee that dropped the Vols from 10th place to 14th.

Last week, the margin was 1,113-930.

World Baseball Expansion Seen By Kuhn In 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — It is October 1984. The opening game of the World Series matches the Peking Reds and the New York Yankees.

Preposterous? Not at all, says Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Kuhn says he expects more major league expansion in the next few years, and he'd like to see Japanese teams in the American majors right now.

"It would certainly be possible to have a Pacific League, with American teams from the West Coast and Honolulu, Japanese teams like Tokyo and Osaka and perhaps Taiwan and Manila.

"And, can Peking be far behind?" asked the commissioner in an interview Monday. His remark was half in jest and half serious.

With improved relations between the West and Mainland China and with air travel speeds increasing all the time, there is no reason why athletic teams from the Orient could not compete regularly with Western Hemisphere teams.

Kuhn said baseball is on the verge of expansion—perhaps not immediately, but not before too long. He mentioned such cities as Toronto, Seattle, New Orleans and Mexico City as prime candidates.

"We'd like to be playing in Mexico City and Toronto right now," Kuhn said. "There is no reason why not."

Travel is virtually no problem. The flying time from Seattle to Tokyo is less than six hours. West Coast major league teams already are flying more than five hours to get to the East Coast.

Japanese baseball is very well developed and well supported. A number of American ex-major leaguers are playing for Japanese teams.

As far as is known, the sport has not been introduced in Mainland China, but Taiwan has an extensive program, and the Taiwan entry in the Little League World Series has won two straight World Titles.

LE Reserves Beat Lakers

The Logan Elm reserve football team defeated Millersport 35-12 Monday. The LE reserves have a 4-1-1 record and play at Carroll next Monday in the last game of the season.

"The defense was outstanding and running by Dave Hulse, Dale Reynolds and Tim Justus contributed to the win," Coach Steve Barney said.

The Braves scored in the first quarter on a 35-yard pass from quarterback Bob Sargent to Mark Justus and in the second quarter on a 25-yard aerial from Sargent to Phil Manson.

In the third quarter, Manson returned a kickoff 65 yards for a touchdown and then caught a pass from Sargent for the two-point conversion.

Still in the third quarter, Sargent hit Justus with a 50-yard pass and then ran for the two extra points. The final touchdown was a five yard run by Dale Reynolds. Wes King kicked the extra point.

Millersport scored in the third quarter on a five-yard pass and in the fourth quarter on a five-yard run.

Atomic Speedway Sets 1st Awards Banquet

The Atomic Speedway Board of Directors announced that they plan to hold their first Awards Banquet in Chillicothe December 1 at the Elk's Hall.

Awards will be presented to the 1973 track champions, driver and car owner, in each class: Late Models, Super Sprints, and Hobby Stocks.

Richard Mitchell, 844 Jefferson Avenue, Chillicothe, was elected program chairman. Anyone interested in information concerning this banquet should contact him before November 26.

Lindsey May Return To Cleveland Browns

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns reportedly have asked Dale Lindsey to come back and fill the vacancy created when middle linebacker Billy Andrews left last week for back surgery.

Lindsey was with the Browns for eight years before being cut last summer. The New Orleans Saints picked him up but released him earlier this month.

Wildlife Licenses May Cost More

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Division of Wildlife has just finished the 1973 fiscal year in the red. As a result, hunters and fishermen may see an increase in their licenses in the future.

Dan Armbruster, chief of the division, said expenditures totaled $602,002 more than revenue in this fiscal year. In 1972, the division was in the black by $694,598.

Armbruster said division revenue increased from $6,810,066 in the 1972 fiscal year to $7,072,760 for the year which ended June 30.

At the same time, expenditures jumped $1,559,294, from $6,115,468 in 1972 to $7,674,762 in 1973.

WCH Stays Atop Grid Heap

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Newark Catholic replaced Marion Pleasant as the Class A high school football leader today in The Associated Press state ratings.

Pleasant's 31-8 loss to Class AA River Valley, ending Ohio's longest ever winning streak at 44 games last week somersaulted the defending small school champions to fourth place.

Meanwhile, Warren Western Reserve in Class AAA and Washington Court House in Class AA preserved impressive leads in the other two divisions.

Western Reserve, carrying a 24-

game winning streak that includes seven 1973 victories, rolled up 292 points to 215 for Cincinnati Moeller, the No. 2 team again in Class AAA.

Washington Court House, which has posted seven straight shutouts this season, earned 225 points in Class AA. Minerva was second again with 199 points.

Newark Catholic, a former Class A state king, moved up from the second spot a week ago. The unbeaten Green Wave, 6-0-0, collected 210 points to 195 for runnerup Cory Rawson. Ada was third again with 164 points.

Pleasant has won the last two AP state titles as well as the first Class A playoff crown last fall.

McDonald was sixth in Class A, followed by Portsmouth Notre Dame, Sugar Grove Berne Union, Norwalk St. Paul and Kirtland. St. Paul, a former Ohio champion with a 7-0-0 start this season, was the lone newcomer to the small school top ten.

Canton McKinley, an ex-Ohio champion in Class AAA, was the lone new face among the big schools. The Bulldogs, once beaten in seven games, surged into the No. 10 spot.

Cincinnati Bacon, tenth a week ago and a 14-0 victim of Moeller, fell to 13th.

Akron Garfield again was third and Massillon fourth in Class AAA.

Zanesville was fifth, Fremont Ross sixth, Newark seventh, Barborton eighth, Youngstown Mooney ninth and McKinley No. 10.

Newark Licking Valley climbed into the Class AA tenth slot, replacing Bellaire. Bellaire, tied 0-0 by Wheeling, W. Va., Central, tumbled to a tie for 19th this week.

Cincinnati Reading was third in Class AA and then came Ironton, Dayton Jefferson, Lisbon Beaver Local, Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary, Columbus Watterson, Cleveland Benedictine and Licking Valley.

A state-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters conducts the ratings each week.

Millersport scored in the third quarter on a five-yard pass and in the fourth quarter on a five-yard run.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — These indeed are the times that try men's souls, particularly those of network executives trying to plan coverage of what President Nixon and the Congress will do next.

But the National Public Affairs Center for Television already is off and running this week with nightly half-hour studies of the crisis brought on by Nixon's sudden ouster of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The mini-specials were arranged after a hurried conference Monday between NPACT and Public Broadcasting Service officials. PBS operates the hookup linking the nation's 239 public TV stations.

A PBS spokesman said NPACT's first show, scheduled for last night, included an exclusive interview with White House speechwriter Pat Buchanan.

The show also was to examine the legal aspects of Nixon's actions and the departure from office of the two Nixon appointees who refused the President's order to fire Cox — Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus and Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Tonight's NPACT show, scheduled to run at 10 p.m. EDT, will focus on public reaction to Nixon's move, sampling the opinions of community leaders in several cities, PBS says.

Wednesday's show will assess the mood of the Congress and the current cries there for Nixon's impeachment. The themes of the Thursday and Friday shows haven't been decided yet.

As of Monday afternoon, the three TV networks were saying they hadn't planned any similar specials for this week — yet.

The crisis caused by the Cox firing last Saturday prompted CBS and NBC to air two news specials at 11:30 that night. ABC stuck with its regular programming.

The half-hour CBS special was basically a discussion of the case by anchorman Dan Rather and three correspondents.

But NBC pulled out all the stops, bumping a repeat of the "Tonight" show for a 90-minute special anchored by John Chancellor and produced by Frank Jordan, NBC's Washington bureau chief.

Joseph Giordana's point is that psychiatrists treating patients of different backgrounds should be aware of ethnic differences.

They Got

A Watchdog?

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Perhaps it was merely a case of living up to his name but Lazy, a St. Bernard pup, was the only item stolen during a mobile home burglary.

Police in nearby Benton Township said they were unable to determine if the dog was too lazy to protest when the burglars took him or got lost while trying to rout the thieves.

They Ride

In Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel's largest city has almost one vehicle for every five residents, the Central Bureau of Statistics reports. About one-quarter of Israel's 328,000 vehicles—including 197,000 private autos—were registered in Tel Aviv in 1972.

Fishless Day

SYDNEY (AP)—Sydney is especially short of fish one day a year.

It's supposed to be the fishermen's annual picnic, but there never is a picnic. However, the fish market is closed under the regulations.

Hasn't Inflated

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—When the New Jersey Turnpike was opened to the public on Jan. 15, 1952, the driver of a passenger car traveling the full turnpike length of 118 miles from Deepwater to Ridgewood Park paid a toll of $1.75.

The toll today is still $1.75. That averages to 1.48 cents per mile—next to the lowest car toll on any of the major toll roads in the nation. Cheapest is the 241-mile Ohio Turnpike, with a per-mile toll of 1.45 cents.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP)—These indeed are the times that try men's souls, particularly those of network executives trying to plan coverage of what President Nixon and the Congress will do next.

But the National Public Affairs Center for Television already is off and running this week with nightly half-hour studies of the crisis brought on by Nixon's sudden ouster of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The mini-specials were arranged after a hurried conference Monday between NPACT and Public Broadcasting Service officials. PBS operates the hookup linking the nation's 239 public TV stations.

A PBS spokesman said

There Are Differences

NEW YORK (AP)—It seems that Archie Bunker knows a thing or two after all.

The Queens director of the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has issued a report saying that there is indeed a difference between Jewish, Irish and Italian Americans.

For instance, he reports, in closely knit Italian and Jewish families, "both exhibit strong ties between mother and son," but the Jewish father is usually on the periphery, while the Italian father, embodying male strength, inspires fear.

Joseph Giordana's point is that psychiatrists treating patients of different backgrounds should be aware of ethnic differences.

They Got

A Watchdog?

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Perhaps it was merely a case of living up to his name but Lazy, a St. Bernard pup, was the only item stolen during a mobile home burglary.

Police in nearby Benton Township said they were unable to determine if the dog was too lazy to protest when the burglars took him or got lost while trying to rout the thieves.

They Ride

In Tel Aviv

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel's largest city has almost one vehicle for every five residents, the Central Bureau of Statistics reports. About one-quarter of Israel's 328,000 vehicles—including 197,000 private autos—were registered in Tel Aviv in 1972.

NPACT's first show, scheduled for last night, included an exclusive interview with White House speechwriter Pat Buchanan. The show also was to examine the legal aspects of Nixon's actions and the departure from office of the two Nixon appointees who refused the President's order to fire Cox — Deputy Att. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus and Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Tonight's NPACT show, scheduled to run at 10 p.m. EDT, will focus on public reaction to Nixon's move, sampling the opinions of community leaders in several cities, PBS says.

Wednesday's show will assess the mood of the Congress and the current cries there for Nixon's impeachment. The themes of the Thursday and Friday shows haven't been decided yet.

As of Monday afternoon, the three TV networks were saying they hadn't planned any similar specials for this week — yet.

The crisis caused by the Cox firing last Saturday prompted CBS and NBC to air two news specials at 11:30 that night. ABC stuck with its regular programming.

The half-hour CBS special was basically a discussion of the case by anchorman Dan Rather and three correspondents.

But NBC pulled out all the stops, bumping a repeat of the "Tonight" show for a 90-minute special anchored by John Chancellor and produced by Frank Jordan, NBC's Washington bureau chief.

Hasn't Inflated

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—When the New Jersey Turnpike was opened to the public on Jan. 15, 1952, the driver of a passenger car traveling the full turnpike length of 118 miles from Deepwater to Ridgeway Park paid a toll of $1.75. The toll today is still $1.75. That averages to 1.48 cents per mile—next to the lowest toll on any of the major toll roads in the nation. Cheapest is the 241-mile Ohio Turnpike, with a per-mile toll of 1.45 cents.

3 Boys Charged In Burning Death

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three boys, two 13 and one 12, have been charged with first-degree murder in the death of a derelict who was doused with lighter fluid and set afire.

Officers said the boys, whose names were withheld, admitted setting fire to Charles Scales, 38, as he slept off a wine drunk behind an abandoned building Saturday night.

The boys also were charged Monday with two counts of assault with intent to commit murder for setting fire to two other men, officers said. Police said they knew of a fourth man assaulted by the trio.

Police gave this account of the incident:

The boys, all of whom have long records of vandalism, larceny, burglary, robbery and narcotics possession, bought or stole several cans of lighter fluid from a neighborhood store.

Their first victim was a cat. They soaked the animal with lighter fluid and then watched it burn to death. A short time later they set fire to an unidentified drunk who managed to beat out the flames and shuffle away.

The boys then wandered down the street to a restaurant, where they tossed lighter fluid on J.B. Blackburn, 50, as he left a back door. Blackburn said the youngsters threw a lighted match at him and fled down an alley as he pulled off his shirt and beat out the flames.

The youths next entered an alley where Emmett Spratling, 53, was lying on a discarded table top and Scales was sleeping on a bench.

Officers said Spratling told them he and Scales had been drinking wine and had settled down to sleep when they were attacked.

The boys set both men afire and ran away. Spratling managed to beat out the flames that flared round his head, but by the time Scales woke and rushed out of the alley, his clothing and large sections of flesh had been burned.

Spratling suffered only minor injuries. Scales died in a hospital 10 hours later.

Officers said one boy was on a weekend pass from the Kendall Youth Home where he was serving a sentence for burglary and possession of barbiturates. He was returned to the home. The other boys were sent to the Dade County Youth Hall, police said.

Three weeks ago in Boston, a young woman was killed by youths who forced her to soak herself with gasoline then set her afire.

Farmer Urges Cautious Planting

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the federal government and most consumers urge farmers to increase production, Rep. William J. Scherle, an Iowa grain and livestock farmer, bucks the trend by telling his constituents: "Don't Overplant!" or "Plant with Caution!"

If farmers overplant, Scherle says, market prices might fall, as they have in the past, and "our farmers will be getting a lesser amount for their crop."

The conservative Republican issues his caution notes regularly at the end of his newsletter because the American farmer is "going to get himself caught in a declining market, rather than making a living wage out of his efforts," an aide explained.

"We don't want them back at $1-a-bushel corn," the aide said.

At times this year, corn has sold over $4 a bushel.

The Agriculture Department has called for "full production," saying it will increase the supply of food, stabilize consumer prices and maintain farm income at its present high level.

Scherle does not trust the supply-and-demand forecasts of the Agriculture Department, the aide said. "Those are the same ones who sold wheat to Russia," he commented.

The 440-million-bushel sale to the Soviet Union last year has been cited by agricultural economists as one of several major factors contributing to this year's record retail food prices.

Farm spokesmen say farmers are not getting their fair share of the higher consumer prices because costs of grain to feed stock have risen just as rapidly.

Farm income, however, is at its highest level in two decades.

Nonetheless, Scherle's aide said, "the farmer just can't go up and plow to the fence rows" as Agriculture

Trio Splits Nobel Prize In Physics

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1973 Nobel Prize for Chemistry was awarded jointly today to British Prof. Geoffrey Wilkinson and German Prof. Ernst Otto Fischer. The physics prize went to two Americans, Leo Esaki and Ivar Giaever, and a Briton, Brian Josephson.

Wilkinson and Fischer were cited for their "pioneering work, performed independently, on the chemistry of the organometallic so-called sandwich compounds."

The three winners were announced after lengthy deliberation by the Royal Academy of Science which cited the two Americans for "their experimental discoveries regarding tunneling phenomena in semiconductors and superconductors, respectively."

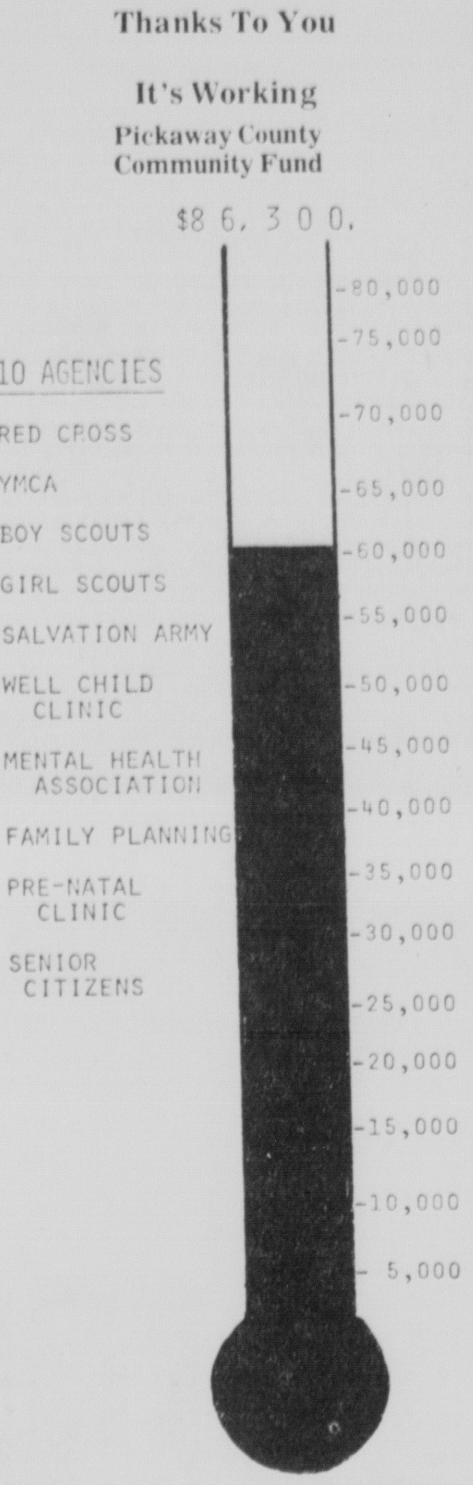

Josephson was cited for "his theoretical predictions of the properties of a supercurrent through a tunnel barrier, in particular those phenomena which are generally known as Josephson effects."

Japanese-born Esaki, who works with the IBM Corp., and Norwegian-born Giaever, who works for General Electric, share one half of the $120,000 prize, while the other half goes to Josephson of Cambridge University.

The decision was delayed for more than an hour with four choices — one a last-minute outsider — being discussed during the academy's decisive session.

Rule Carney Replacement Necessary

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge George McMonagle ruled today that a candidate must be selected to succeed James Carney on the Cleveland mayoral ballot for the Nov. 6 election.

Carney, a Democrat who finished second to Republican incumbent Ralph J. Perk in the city's nonpartisan primary Oct. 2, has withdrawn from the race, citing personal reasons. That left only the name of Perk on the ballot.

McMonagle's ruling came in a suit by radio announcer Gary Dee seeking to get a ballot which would offer Cleveland voters a choice of two candidates instead of one.

The judge ordered that a nominating committee select a candidate and present it to the county board of elections by 4 p. m. Thursday for inclusion on the ballot. The candidate cannot be Carney.

The committee is composed of Councilman Gerald McFaul, Mary Zamlen, Timothy Hagan, James Kaval and Naomi Wilcox.

Sol Stillman, Republican county co-chairman, called McMonagle's ruling "an intelligent decision."

"It will now give the people a choice," he said. He said it probably would alter Perk's strategy in his effort to win reelection.

Honk For Impeachment Takes Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — For two days now, the quiet tranquility of the White House lawn has been shattered by passing motorists who are responding to demonstrators' signs that read: "Honk for Impeachment."

And, at a small card table in the grassy park across from the White House, a 34-year-old registered Republican from Baltimore has already run out of her supply of 3,000 "Impeach Nixon" bumper stickers.

Deans Want Independent Prosecutor

NEW YORK (AP) — A petition signed by the deans of 17 law schools urges Congress to create a new independent Watergate prosecutor's office to replace the one abolished by President Nixon.

Saying there is a "serious question" as to whether Nixon would cooperate fully with a congressionally appointed prosecutor, the petition also asked Congress to name a committee to "consider the necessity" of impeaching the President.

"Substantial evidence exists that close associates of the President of the United States and possibly the President himself have engaged in a deliberate effort to obstruct justice," the petition states.

"Public trust in the administration of justice requires that the evidence of such misconduct be investigated by prosecutors independent of those under investigation."

The petition was circulated by Michael I. Sovern, dean of the Columbia University Law School. A Columbia spokesman said other signatories included:

Albert M. Sacks of Harvard; Abraham S. Goldstein of Yale; Robert B. McKay of New York University; Phil C. Neal of the University of Chicago; Adrian S. Fisher of Georgetown University; Thomas Ehrlich of Stanford University; E. Clinton Bamberger Jr., Catholic University of America; Gordon A. Christenson, American University Washington College of Law; Monroe H. Freedman, Hofstra University; Kenneth L. Penegar, University of Tennessee; Herbert O. Reid, acting dean of Howard University;

Car Of Slain Man Burns In Louisville

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—The car of a man found dead of gunshot wounds in Cincinnati last Thursday was discovered burning Monday in a Louisville, Ky., alley.

Cincinnati homicide Lt. Dan Cash said the car belonged to James Mack Crenshaw, 55, of Cincinnati. Crenshaw had been shot in the chest and arm, Cash said.

More than 5,000 signatures have been gathered on petitions calling for President Nixon's impeachment, say members of the ad hoc Committee to Impeach the President, a group organizing week-long demonstrations.

Police estimated some 200 demonstrators marched in front of the White House Monday.

And White House watchers say there is little doubt that President Nixon received an earful of blaring noise Monday when he strolled from the serenity of his Oval Office across the private street to his suite in the Executive Office Building.

"If he didn't hear them, he had cotton in his ears," said one presidential observer.

But, when the President made a speedy retreat to his mountain hideaway at Camp David, Md., several hours later, White House press spokesman Gerald L. Warren said it had nothing to do with the demonstrations.

Although a majority of the demonstrators were college age, there were a number of middle-age marchers. Some carried signs that read: "One down, one to go," a reference to the recent resignation of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

One gray-haired, bespectacled woman from Connecticut carried a cardboard poster with the carefully printed words: "Nixon's the One — To Impeach."

"I'm a retired school teacher," she said. "I just had to come. But don't print my name. I might lose my pension."

Two Baltimore residents, Jim Goodnow and Barbara Stephens, both 34, handed out bumper stickers and collected signatures on petitions calling for the President's impeachment.

"We both voted for Nixon because he said he had a secret plan to end the war," said Goodnow, who looked more like a vaudeville M.C. in his brown searsucker suit and straw hat than a White House demonstration organizer. "Now he's got a secret plan to end the Justice Department."

Farmer Urges Cautious Planting

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the federal government and most consumers urge farmers to increase production, Rep. William J. Scherle, an Iowa grain and livestock farmer, bucks the trend by telling his constituents: "Don't Overplant!" or "Plant with Caution!"

What's the reaction been to Scherle's stand? "Well, some people have said, 'Yeah, doggone right,' but we won't really know until they start planting next spring," the aide said.

Cancellation Of Teacher Pacts Ordered

MC ARTHUR, Ohio (AP) — The board of education in Vinton County has ordered cancellation of the contracts of 87 striking teachers.

The board's action came Monday as the strike, which began Sept. 21, entered its second month.

The 87 teachers were notified by letter.

The school board at the outset of the strike invoked provisions of Ohio's Ferguson Act, which authorizes the firing of public employees who refuse to work.

Then, two weeks ago, the board offered to reinstate 70 of the teachers. The teachers responded they would not return to work until all strikers were rehired.

The teachers walked off the job in a dispute over dismissal policies and grievance procedures.

The board voted Sunday night to rescind provisions of the Ferguson Act for the 17 remaining strikers, then fired all 87 for refusing to work.

The 17 teachers, who claimed they were singled out as leaders of the strike, filed a $2.85 million suit against the board last week, complaining of discrimination.

Schools in Vinton County were open Monday, despite Veterans Day observances, and administrators said about half the system's students were in class. Attendance has been about 50 per cent since the strike began.

Picketing continued, meanwhile, outside most of the rural system's schools.

State School Supt. Martin W. Essex, meanwhile, recommended a list of 50 attorneys to hear appeals by the 17 teachers not initially offered their jobs back.

The latest development, however, apparently eliminated the immediate need for the lawyers' services.

Trio Splits Nobel Prize In Physics

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1973 Nobel Prize for Chemistry was awarded jointly today to British Prof. Geoffrey Wilkinson and German Prof. Ernst Otto Fischer. The physics prize went to two Americans, Leo Esaki and Ivar Giaever, and a Briton, Brian Josephson.

Wilkinson and Fischer were cited for their "pioneering work, performed independently, on the chemistry of the organometallic so-called sandwich compounds."

The three winners were announced after lengthy deliberation by the Royal Academy of Science which cited the two Americans for "their experimental discoveries regarding tunneling phenomena in semiconductors and superconductors, respectively."

Josephson was cited for "his theoretical predictions of the properties of a supercurrent through a tunnel barrier, in particular those phenomena which are generally known as Josephson effects."

Japanese-born Esaki, who works with the IBM Corp., and Norwegian-born Giaever, who works for General Electric, share one half of the $120,000 prize, while the other half goes to Josephson of Cambridge University.

The decision was delayed for more than an hour with four choices — one a last-minute outsider — being discussed during the academy's decisive session.
